ITALIANS INVADE GREECE; ATHENS UNDER RAID ALARM

'Resign,' CIO Leader Urged by Thousands of Powerful Union; F. D. R. Speech Sought for Detroit.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 27.—Representatives of Michigan's members of the CIO's United Automobile Workers' Union deplored today the indorsement of Wendell L. Willkie by their chieftain, John L. Lewis, and pledged "every effort" to re-elect President Roosevelt. The men present were said to represent 300,000 of the union's claimed national membership of 382,000.

At a sometimes noisy meeting, approximately 600 officers and executive board members of the Michigan U. A. W., a power in the CIO, expressed "keen disappointment and disapproval" of Lewis' action while promising President Roosevelt "enthusiastic support." Boos arose when an official defended Lewis.

(Three officials of the union will meet President Roosevelt in New York tomorrow to urge him to carry his campaign for re-election into Michigan, the union said tonight, according to the United Press.)

Telephone Early.

Arrangements for a luncheon conference at 1 p. m. tomorrow were made when President R. J. Thomas of the UAW-CIO called Stephen T. Early, Presidential secretary, in Washington, a union spokesman said.

(Thomas, accompanied by Walter P. Reuthen and Richard T. Frankensteen, union executive board member, flew east tonight for the conference.

(Union officials attending today's meeting promised Mr. Roosevelt a crowd of 250,000 if he would speak in Detroit before the election November 5. They planned to negotiate for a half-day shutdown of all Michigan plants in event the President came here.

(Twelve thousand members of Chrysler Local 7 of the UAWA-CIO, and shop stewards representing 4,000 Kelsey-Hayes Corporation workers at sessions today, urged Lewis to resign immediately as president of the CIO.)

Send F. D. R. Telegram.

Meanwhile, Lewis, who has offered to quit his CIO leadership in event of Roosevelt victory, received personal praise, however, from several UAW leaders. President Thomas called Lewis the "greatest labor leader in the country," and other speakers made similar statements.

The meeting, a result of Lewis' indorsement of Willkie Friday night, was described by officers

'Lewis Fighting U. S. Defense,' Dewey Johnson

Dewey L. Johnson, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor—an American Federation of Labor affiliate—in a statement issued yesterday charged that John L. Lewis' speech of Friday night advocating the election of Wendell Willkie was "a deliberate attempt to sabotage America's defense program."

Johnson said, "His (Lewis) address elevates him to the position of Fifth Columnist No. 1 in America and pushes Colonel Lindbergh off the pedestal."

Johnson charged Lewis with a "burning desire to rule or ruin" and added "there is nothing to which he will not stoop to attain his goal of John L. Lewis rule."

"Primary Purpose."

Johnson said in his prepared statement:

"What I am concerned about is not that he urged the members of the CIO to vote for Wendell Willkie, for I believe it will have little effect. But I believe that if John L Lewis' address is analyzed, thinking people will realize that the primary purpose was not so much to help Wendell Willkie as it was to accomplish another aim. It is one thing for an individual to urge people to vote for some particular candidate for public office and it is quite another to use the entire facilities of radio in this country to advocate disloyalty, disunity and race hatred in a time such as this, when America needs, perhaps more than ever before, a solid, united front to defend our democratic way of life against the onslaughts of the way of life advocated by the dictators of Europe.

Racial Appeal.

"The primary purpose, it seems to me, was to create a feeling of resentment in the mothers of this country for their boys taking part in the defense of this country and our way of life. And when that feeling is instilled it matters not whether Willkie or Roosevelt is President, the effects are the same.

"He appealed to the Negro race in an effort to create race hatred without giving one single instance where they had been discriminated against, nor how they would be better off under a different President. The main objective was to instill in them the thought that they were being discriminated against.

"When he appealed to the young men of this country who have reg-

U. S. TESTS RAILWAY GUNS—Two 14-inch coast defense railway guns were fired in tests by the Third Coast Artillery at Naples, Cal., yesterday. Photo shows a general view as one of the hugh rifles fired its 1,400-pound projectile some 20 miles out over the Pacific ocean. The firing was in the nature of settling shots, costing $1,000 each, to anchor the guns in preparation for firing 28 more practice shots tomorrow.

Cornell Eleven Directed From Bench-Ohioans

Coach Snavely Called Practically All Plays, They Charge.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 27.—(AP) Ohio State University's athletic chiefs—a bit upset by Saturday's 7-21 loss to Cornell—today charged Coach Carl Snavely, of the Big Red, with lack of ethics and poor sportsmanship, but admitted the eastern mentor was "a pretty fair quarterback."

L. W. St. John, Buck athletic director, and Head Coach Francis A. Schmidt declared that Snavely, from the bench, called practically every offensive play run by the Big Red as it handed the Ohioans their worst defeat in Schmidt's seven-year regime.

St. John said Snavely used a light-colored cylinder to tip off his quarterback, grasping it by the end for a pass play, in the center for a sweep, in both hands for a line smash, and then crossing his legs and swinging one foot when he wanted a kick.

"It was a .... crime," Schmidt said, "but it was so obvious and so amateurish that we had to laugh. We finally got to the place where we could call practically every play, Snavely's actions were so bald-faced.

"Some guys are foxy about pulling stuff like that, but everyone in the stadium could see this. Every time he sent in a substitute, the sub's shoe was untied. And as he knelt down to tie it, someone on his team would kneel down to help him. I guess the sub did a lot of against-the-rules talking while his friend helped him tie the shoe."

St. John, giving Cornell credit for having a great team, said he did not believe the bench signals had any effect on the score.

SNAVELY COMMENT: "CONTRARY TO FACT"

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Coach Carl Snavely of Cornell university dismissed tonight as "contrary to fact" accusations of L. W. St. John, Ohio State athletic director, that he directed the Big Red's offensive plays from the sidelines.

"Mr. St. John's charges," said Snavely, "are unwarranted and contrary to fact.

"The officials of this game were perfectly competent and were empowered by the rules to take action in the case of illegal activity on the bench or sidelines."

Balkan Whispering Campaign Lays Food Shortage to Nazis

Price of Onions, Rumanian Favorite, Rises 700 Per Cent; Other Staples Soar While Wages Lag; Hungary Attacks 'Propaganda.'

BUDAPEST, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A "whispering campaign" blaming Germany for food shortages in southeastern Europe drew the sharp fire of Hungarian government newspapers today.

The newspaper attacks followed a series of economic reports showing steep increases in living costs in this neutral sector since the war began.

Foreign office publications charged "mysterious enemy propagandists" with conducting a campaign of letters and pamphlets blaming heavy exports to Germany for rationing measures and for a shortage of food and clothing in territory normally rich in agricultural products.

Many Factors Blamed.

The newspaper said the alleged propaganda was designed to weaken relations between Germany and southeastern Europe.

Trade experts attributed economic difficulties in this area to the war blockade, a late spring, flood-damaged crops and repeated army mobilizations which took labor from the fields.

Rumania has experienced the most drastic changes in living standards, losing large stocks of wheat, sugar and vegetable oils when Russia took over Bessarabia and northern Bucovina.

Food shortages have forced every southeastern European nation to make stringent price regulations.

Profiteers Jailed.

Thousands of profiteers and hoarders have been fined, imprisoned or assigned to forced labor.

It now is difficult to buy soap at any price. Coffee, tea and other imported luxuries have disappeared from most stores.

Hungarians, whose boast was "we are poor, but we live well," are drinking roasted barley and chicory instead of their beloved coffee.

Despite efforts to control prices, Yugoslavia has had a 79 per cent increase in living costs over August, 1939, semiofficial sources disclosed.

Approximately the same increase was estimated in Rumania; Bulgarian authorities said prices had jumped 65 per cent in their country; Greek sources reported a 40 per cent increase; Hungary's increase was at least 30 per cent.

Turkey, where prewar prices already were among the world's highest, had a 15 to 20 per cent rise.

These averages for a family's entire living expenses do not reveal the sharp increase in basic foodstuffs, because other items, such as rent, heat and light, have been held virtually stationary by government control.

An Associated Press survey showed without exception that wages are lagging far behind prices in Balkan countries.

Turkey and Greece had virtually no wage increases. The average unskilled Rumanian worker earns 120 lei a day now, compared with 80 lei before the war. (The exchange value of the lei no longer is available.)

Wage Raises Lag.

Bread in Rumania now is 11 lei per kilogram (2.204 pounds) as compared with 5 kilograms before the war. Onions now are 16 lei per kilogram instead of two; beans are 30 instead of 18; lard is 100 instead of 30.

While textiles are 300 to 400 per cent higher in Yugoslavia, the average laborer's wages are up only 17 per cent. Prices of meat and flour have doubled. Potatoes are three times higher and beans four times higher.

RUSSIAN WHEAT SALE TO GREECE REPORTED

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 27.—(AP) A report that Russia was preparing to aid Axis-threatened Greece with the sale of 120,000 tons of wheat was current in diplomatic circles here tonight.

Argentine Provinces Rocked by Earthquake

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 27.—(UP)—An earthquake rocked the provinces of Cordoba, San Juan and Mendoza tonight.

There were no casualties indicated in the first reports from Mendoza province where thousands of frightened inhabitants in several towns rushed into the streets fearful of a repetition of the great earthquake of October 27, 1894.

There were no reports from the other two provinces.

Give Us Planes And We'll Win, Atlantan Says

'Too Many Dead Italians' Will Bump Mussolini, Hanjaras Declares.

"Give the Greeks some airplanes and they'll run those damn "Wops" back into the Adriatic sea in 30 days."

That was the spontaneous reaction of George Hanjaras, one of Atlanta's many Americanized Greeks, when he was informed early this morning of Italy's march on Greece.

"The Greeks will fight for their homes and their women and children, they won't give up like those countries Germany and Italy have overrun," Hanjaras said. "Greece has a good little army of about 400,000 men and they are well equipped.

Fighting for Homes.

"Italy can bomb our cities, but they can't beat our army. Those 200,000 men Italy has in Albania won't be any match for the Greeks fighting for their homes. Britain will immediately get Greek bases and from there they can bomb Rome to pieces.

"Turkey will fight with Greece too, making allies of these two ancient enemies."

Hanjaras declared that he believed if too many dead Italian soldiers began coming back to Italy and if the British bombers did great damage to Rome, "Those 'Wops' will run Mussolini out of the country."

Funds for Bombers.

The Atlanta restaurant operator revealed local Greeks and other Americanized Greeks from all parts of the United States have taken up, already, collections for a fund to buy American bombers for Greece. He said he believed money for more bombers would come rolling in now that Italy had invaded Greece.

"Greece is a peace loving country. They didn't try to invade Italy. Mussolini has ideas of reestablishing the ancient Roman Empire. He says Greece belonged to that old empire.

"Greece once ruled Rome but the Italians didn't rule Greece.

"The Italians are ancient enemies of the Greeks. They really

Time Has Come for Greeks To Battle to Death for Fatherland, Premier Declares.

By the Associated Press.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Monday, Oct. 28.—Italian minister Rosetti declared today that a state of war exists between Italy and Greece and fighting started at 6 a. m. (10 p. m. Atlanta time.)

The Greek minister said he learned in a telephone conversation with Athens that Italian troops pushed across the border from Albania just as a 6 a. m. Italian ultimtum expired.

King George II announced Greece had been "compelled to go to war against an Italy coveting Greece's independence."

By The United Press.

ATHENS, Monday, Oct. 28.—Greece early today rejected an unconditional surrender ultimatum by Italy and ordered general mobilization, determined to fight to defend her territory.

Athens had an air raid alarm at 7 a. m.—one hour after the Italian ultimatum expired.

(Whether this indicated an attack or merely a test alerte was not immediately known.)

Premier John Metaxas in a proclamation to the Greek people said:

"The time has come for all Greeks to fight to the death for all they hold dear."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(UP)—A state department spokesman said tonight that no word has been received of the Italian ultimatum to Greece for unconditional surrender on the threat of invasion by Italian troops.

The department was closed down for the night. The spokesman said there would be nothing from Washington concerning the newest European developments until morning, at least.

The Italian minister handed the ultimatum to Premier Metaxas at 3 a. m., requiring an answer within three hours. At 5 a. m. the Greek cabinet, in extraordinary session, re-

Metaxas' Message

ATHENS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Premier Metaxas' message to the Greek people said:

"The moment has arrived for Greece to fight for her independence and honor.

"Though we have kept the strictest neutrality toward all, Italy, not recognizing ourselves as free Greeks, demanded of me at 3 o'clock this morning to surrender sections of national territory and that for their occupation her armies would start moving at 6 a. m.

"I replied to the Italian minister I considered the demand and the method in which it was made as a declaration of war by Italy on Greece.

"Greeks, we shall now prove whether we are worthy of our ancestors and of the liberty which our forefathers secured for us.

"Fight for the fatherland, your wives, your children and sacred traditions.

"Now, above all, the fight." (Signed Metaxas.)

Mexico Lifts Her Embargo Against Japan

Claims Ban Threatened To Upset the Economy of Nation.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Highly placed government and diplomatic officials reported tonight that President Cardenas' administration had decided to lift the short-lived unofficial embargo on exports destined for Japan because the ban threatened to upset the nation's economy at this time.

Suspension of the embargo on war materials and foodstuffs which secret agents from the federal attorney general's office enforced last week was scheduled to take effect tomorrow.

The principal fear of the sources disclosing this decision was that it would be misunderstood in the United States.

Gesture of Friendship.

Mexico originally placed restrictions on shipments to Japan as a gesture of solidarity with the United States because of Japanese-American tension in the Pacific, and one government spokesman emphasized:

"The end of these restrictions does not imply any change in Mexico's foreign policy of friendship and collaboration with the United States.

"Should the international situation make it necessary, I am confident that Mexico would co-operate with the United States and the other American republics by officially proclaiming such an embargo against Japan."

Free Trade Restored.

The spokesman said that scrap iron and certain petroleum products, which are practically government monopolies, probably would continue on the restricted list. But full freedom of trade has been restored to private operators.

Since last week Mexican agents were reported to have impounded thousands of tons of such items as oil, flour, molybdenum, scrap iron, mercury, antimony and fibers ready for shipment to Japan in Mexican ports.

One diplomatic source said "The present embargo is being lifted because Mexico had good intentions, but did not stop to think about what they would cost."

DOGS OF THE STORM.

Three pups born to Mrs. E. M. Miller's pet dog during the height of a South Carolina coastal hurricane have been appropriately named "Storm," "Mist" and "Hurricane."

Your Assurance Of Better HOUSE PAINT

Du Pont Prepared paint forms a tough, durable film which protects the surface from rust, rot or decay. Like all paints, it collects dirt on exposure to the elements. As time goes on, however, a fine white powder forms on the surface of this new paint. This powder is washed away by heavy rains, carrying the dirt with it, and exposing a fresh white surface. This "self-cleaning" process starts after a few months of exposure under normal conditions of weather, but may be delayed under unusual climatic or dirt-collecting conditions. Because the "self-cleaning" process is gradual, the wearing qualities of the film are not abnormally affected.

Draftsmen Not Exempt From Wage-Hour Act

Fleming Expresses Similar View About Reporters, Copy Readers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Colonel Philip B. Fleming, wage-hour administrator, told a union of architects and engineers today that "in the vast majority of instances" draftsmen would not be regarded as professional workers who are exempt from the wage-hour law.

He expressed a similar view about newspaper reporters assigned to regular beats and about copy desk editors.

Fleming's opinions were contained in a letter to B. O. Lum, business representative of the Seattle Association of Technical Engineers and Architects. Lum had asked for clarification of recently adopted rules defining exempted "administrative" and "professional" employes.

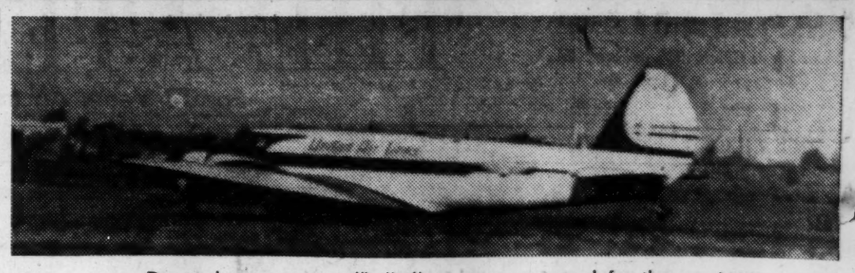

The rules require that an exempted employe in this classification must receive at least $200 a month, and must meet certain other requirements. Employes not exempted must be paid time and one-half for work in excess of 40 hours weekly.

RULING ON WAGE-HOUR SUBPOENA RIGHT SEEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The supreme court may act tomorrow on litigation involving the right of the federal wage-hour administrator to subpoena records of employers.

The tribunal is expected to announce whether it will review a challenge by Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc., of an attempt by the administrator to subpoena records concerning 2,000 employes at the Kansas City, Mo., branch of the Chicago mail order house.

Germans Drop Bomb Clusters Upon London

City Has Six Alarms in Day; Hospital Is Attacked.

LONDON (Monday), Oct. 28.—(AP)—Axis warplanes dropped tons of explosives and fire bombs in opening their fifty-first night attack on the capital last night, but by midnight comparative calm had settled over the darkened capital.

Millions remained underground, but a few buses and taxis whirred through otherwise deserted streets.

In one East Anglian town a raider swooped low to machine-gun a train, but there were no casualties. Houses and buses also were splattered with machinegun bullets.

In another East Anglian town a policeman was killed and several persons injured when a delayed action bomb exploded.

Raiders also were active in northeast England, where a hospital was struck. London had six alarms from dawn to dusk.

One German raider was reported shot down by a British fighter near a Yorkshire village. Four Germans, one injured, were captured.

The air ministry announced that eight German planes were shot down in today's raids. Six British fighters were shot down, but the pilot of one was said to be safe.

The raiders again followed one of their favorite tactics—dropping incendiary bombs first and then using the light of fires thus started to guide them in attacks with explosive bombs.

Dr. A. C. Scott, Cancer Specialist, Succumbs

TEMPLE, Tex., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Dr. A. C. Scott Sr., 75, specialist on diagnosis and treatment of cancer, and one of the founders of the Scott and White hospital here, died today of a heart attack.

Dr. Scott was especially known for his use of the hot (cautery) knife in the removal of cancer.

He developed the "shadow" test in diagnosis of cancer in the breast and read a paper on his progress in that field before the American Medical Association convention at San Francisco in 1938.

He pioneered in the use of gas anesthesia, introducing it here in 1908 after the method had been used by only three other physicians in the country.

Germany Doomed, Benes Declares

LONDON, Oct. 27. —(AP)—A definite transformation in all military operations "by spring" was forecast tonight by Dr. Eduard Benes, president of the Czeco-Slovak government in exile, in a broadcast to his people on the eve of the 22nd anniversary of Czecho-Slovak independence.

"The fall of Nazi Germany is really inevitable even if tomorrow or the day after tomorrow it should gain some victory," he asserted.

"The absolute failure of all German attempts to invade England, the almost incredible losses in all their aerial ventures, the impenetrable blockade of Germany which will continue to be ever more intensified by continually growing British air superiority—all this will lead next spring to a definite transformation in all military operations," he declared.

RAF Pilot, Thinking of London, Tells of Glee.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—"You get a great kick out of bombing Berlin when you think of all the stuff they're chucking on London."

That's the reaction of a British pilot who has flown over the German capital four times.

Asked how it feels to dump bombs on Nazi targets, the pilot, a 31-year-old Irishman, said:

"My main reaction was a feeling of satisfaction—rather of glee. Naturally, there is a feeling of tenseness until you find your target and the bomb-aimer lets go."

Envy Germans.

He admitted that during the long flight to Berlin the British airmen couldn't help but envy the Germans for the short distance they fly to London from the Nazi-held channel bases.

"On my first flight over Berlin," he continued, "I spent 55 minutes locating Tempelhof airdrome. Some of the boys searched a couple of hours. When you find your target you relax and feel good about a job well done.

"The crew members talk back and forth on the communication system and when we're over our target you can hear someone say, 'Right in the center' or 'A little to one side.'"

Grouchy If He Misses.

The pilot said it is easy to tell from a pilot's face whether he found his objective—the one he was sent after. If he has to be satisfied with an alternative he "grouches."

"The main thing is to get your primary target. When you get it it's swell. When you hit an oil plant and see the fire you say to yourself, 'Well, it'll be a good while before they get anything out of that again.'"

Police Stage Raids on Nazis In Argentina

Membership Lists, Documents Confiscated in Extensive Roundup.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 27.—(UP) Police seized membership lists and other documents today during a series of anti-Nazi raids in the territory of Misiones.

The raids were ordered by Judge Ramon Ocampo, who has started an investigation into the ramifications of the Nazi parties and their affiliates.

Ocampo ordered the seizure of membership lists of various suspect organizations and a thorough search of their files in order to determine the inter-relationship between these groups in the territory of Misiones.

The police raided the offices of German cultural and welfare organizations, and trade union headquarters located in a German bank building.

Membership lists, identification cards, applications for temporary memberships, correspondence and various other documents were taken by police.

Ocampo also ordered the questioning of Alfredo Muller, Guillermo Weilland, Otto Pegeler and other men connected with German societies and trade unions.

An investigation of the "Pfadfinder," a German Boy Scout and gymnastic organization, also was ordered.

Ocampo's court order further requested a police investigation into the activities of the Hotel Vienna to determine whether Roberto Sumtheim, Jorge Riedler, Victor Hallasch and other members of the German community were harbored there last May.

Axis, Russia To Set Danube Rules Today

Soviet 'Forces' Way Into River Conference at Bucharest.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 27.—(UP)—German, Russian, Italian and Rumanian representatives will meet here tomorrow to draw up new regulations covering transport on the Danube river in keeping with the new Balkan status.

Reports circulated that Germany would make increasing use of the vital artery as a means of communication as a result of Rumania's recent alignment under the Axis sphere of influence.

The newspaper Universul said that German interest in the Danube had become more vital than ever, particularly because of a new system of canals linking Germany with the Near East and the Black sea with the North sea.

Russia was understood to have made known on several occasions her claims to a part in control of the Danube, on the ground that Soviet shipping on that waterway had increased in recent years. Now that Russia has regained Bessarabia, the Soviet is a sort of co-partner with Rumania in controlling the northern branch of the river at the outlet to the Black sea.

An announcement in Rome said that a single Danubian commission would be formed to replace the old international and European Danubian commissions. It said the new commission would be composed of representatives of Italy, Germany, Russia, Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Slovakia.

In Budapest, Hungarian sources interpreted the admission of Russia to the conference as confirmation of a Soviet-German understanding. They assumed that Russia had "forced" an entrance to the conference after being excluded from the original called for Vienna some time ago.

Italy Rushing Men, Supplies To Greek Line

Yugoslavia Report Says 200,000 Fascists on Albanian Border.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Great activity among Italian forces in Albania and steady movements of war materials toward the Greek frontier, where Italians have reported clashes, were reported today by observers near the Yugoslav-Albanian border.

Neutral military observers, piecing together information from Albania, declared ten Italian attack divisions had been positively identified along the Greek frontier.

They estimated that reserve troops for these divisions, with transport columns and other necessary units, would swell the Italian forces in Albania past the 200,000 mark.

While one of the best routes into Greece is down the Bitolj valley in southern Yugoslavia, military sources said this area was one of the most heavily fortified parts of this country and expressed doubts the Italians would attempt to use it.

Plane Blazes Route Across Western Gulf

Flight From Guatemala To New Orleans Takes Five Hours.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 27.—(UP)—A gleaming twin-engined Lockheed 14-H seeking a transport trail across the western gulf of Mexico landed today after a five hour, 34 minute flight from Guatemala City.

The 14-passenger ship of Transportes Aereoes Centro Americanos (TACA) left Aurora airport at 6:21 a. m. and dropped on New Orleans airport at 11:55 a. m. Lowell Yerex, president of TACA, veteran Central American Airline recently acquired by American Export Airlines, Inc., was accompanied by four crew members and J. H. Leche, British minister to Guatemala.

The flight, undertaken to familiarize the crew with overwater trips and navigation facilities, was made at 12,000 feet.

Using New Orleans as a main terminal, American Export planned to inaugurate a system of airlanes linking the United States—particularly the midwest—with Central and South America as soon as approval is received from the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Bombing of Dutch Laid to Germans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Netherlands legation charged today that German fliers were bombing nonmilitary targets throughout the Netherlands and ascribing "this wanton destruction" to the British in an effort to foster "civilian hatred of the British."

"Shortly after the British have bombed military targets, additional bombs have been dropped on residential districts some distance away by German planes," the legation said in a statement cabled from the Netherlands government in London.

Then, it added, "repeated broadcasts over the German-controlled Netherlands radio" accuse the British of "bombing civilians."

The legation said that Dutchmen "have seen swastikas on the planes which bombed residential districts," and that the alleged RAF bombing targets "do not and have not appeared at any time on the maps of British fliers."

France Bans Criticism of Deal With Axis

Popularity Campaign Is Started, But French Must Accept Policy.

VICHY, France, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Petain-Laval government tonight began a campaign to make its new tie-up with the axis powers popular with the French people, but government spokesmen flatly said that the "choice now has been made" and every Frenchman must accept it.

No criticism of the policy of collaboration with Germany and Italy can be permitted, these spokesmen declared.

An official announcement said Vice-Premier Pierre Laval would broadcast to the defeated nation tomorrow an explanation of the negotiations with Adolf Hitler, but the time and place of his address were not given.

Also, Laval is scheduled to leave Vichy for Paris tomorrow after a cabinet meeting with Chief of State Petain.

Until Laval talks, at least, the country was left in the dark on what lies behind the brief announcement Saturday that Hitler and Marshal Petain have agreed in principal to work together to rebuild European peace.

PECANS HARVESTED.

ROCHELLE, Ga., Oct. 27.—Wilcox county farmer's are beginning to gather their crop of pecans. Reports are that the production is very good and the grade of nuts are up to the average. There are approximately 35,540 trees planted for commercial purposes in this county.

Nazi Rulers Order Curfew In Netherlands

Residents Must Stay Indoors Between Midnight and 4 A. M.

AMSTERDAM (via Berlin), Oct. 27. — (AP) — Netherlands residents must stay indoors between midnight and 4 o'clock in the morning, starting October 31, unless they have a special permit, the German-dominated government announced today.

Cafes will close at 11 o'clock at night and public dancing will be prohibited. No reason was given for the curfew.

(The Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter of Stockholm reported last night that sabotage in Bergen, Norwegian Arctic port, had caused the Nazis to clamp down, forbidding Bergen residents to be on the streets after darkness.)

Clergymen reported from the pulpits of all protestant churches in the Netherlands today that protestant sects were uniting in a protest to Arthur Seysz-Inquart, German Netherlands commissioner, against a recent anti-Jewish decree.

The announcement said the decree excluding Jews from government services was a measure not in accordance with Christianity.

Methodists Plan Meeting Tuesday

Atlanta district Methodist pastors and laymen will hold a special district conference-rally tomorrow at the First Methodist church, conducted by Bishop Arthur J. Moore, beginning at 10 o'clock. At 11 o'clock the bishop is to preach.

The special one-day meeting is said to be the last of a series of similar meetings conducted by Bishop Moore throughout the two Georgia conferences in preparation for the annual conference sessions in November.

Each pastor will be asked to make detailed report as to the progress made so far on the year's program of work, and as to the prospects of completing the program before annual conference assembles here on the twenty-first of November.

Hindsight and Foresight

The Human Side

BY HOLGAR J. JOHNSON
President Institute of Life Insurance

EVERY once in a while I talk with someone who, because his life insurance policy is small, seems to think it is not important.

JOHNSON

The opposite is true. The very strength of this democratic institution lies in the millions of small policies owned by workers in field, factory and office.

Life insurance is a very human kind of business, not only because it is owned by people in every walk of life, but because of the intimate part it plays in their lives. And here, to give you a picture of these human values, I want to quote from an unusual letter written by a woman in the Middle West.

"There were times when we used to smile a little at my mother, for she jealously hoarded her life insurance policies, no matter how small their individual face value. She considered them the safest protection for people of moderate means.

"To her the insurance companies were most dependable—had they not stood firmly as a rock during the depression which followed the panic of 1929? We were a large family of girls, living on a slender income—part of a class of small policyholders which insurance companies have helped above all others to give protection to fit every purse and every need.

"Sometimes there arose a grave, vital necessity which demanded more money than my father could give from his wages. Then my mother would go to the only security and aid she personally possessed, her tin box holding our policies. After the transaction was completed satisfactorily, she would heave a sigh of relief and say: 'Well, they've kept their word!'

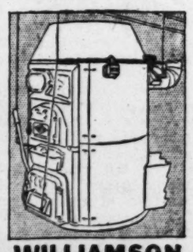

"For this reason none of us associated insurance merely with death. But my mother, now old, lived to see all her dimes and quarters serve as props to sustain her and her children in their hour of sorrow."

After all, it's the human side that counts.

Tripl-life pleases "fussy" housewife

"The Williamson Heater Company:
We wished to have everything perfect in our new home and so we had a Williamson furnace installed. It has never been a disappointment. What I particularly like about it (being a 'fussy' housekeeper) is how little smoke and dirt comes from it. Regardless of how cold it is outdoors our house is always evenly and quickly heated."

THE DRAFT AND YOU

In plain and understandable language, a new Bulletin just prepared by The Constitution's Washington Service Bureau, telling all about Selective Military Training and Service, is ready for you. It tells exactly who must register, how the local boards will operate, classify, physically examine, and select registrants—the period of service, exemptions from service, deferment of service, conscientious objectors—the question of dependents. The bulletin tells also about moratorium and stay laws and how they affect payment of rent, installment contracts, mortgages. It explains the new National Service Life Insurance—pay allowances and uniforms—kind of training—recreation facilities to be provided—food, quarters, discipline, medical care. In addition, 35 "most asked questions" about the draft are covered in Question and Answer form.

If you want a complete pocket reference manual on the Selective Service Act and its operation, send the coupon below for your copy of this new bulletin:

75,000 Men In State To Fall Under Group I

12,200 Georgians May Be Called to Arms Within Year.

Of the 383,399 Georgians who are registered for selective service, approximately 75,000 will be classified in Group I and will therefore be subject to drafting for a year's service in one of the military service departments.

From this qualified number, about 12,200 men may actually be called to arms during next year from Georgia.

This means that an able-bodied Georgian of draft age, with no dependents or other deferment characteristics, has one chance in six of being selected.

Draft statisticians believe that 60 per cent of the registered men will be deferred by local draft boards because of dependents. Another 20 per cent will not be taken because they possess physical handicaps or are essential to industrial stability.

"Available for Service."

Only 20 per cent of the registrants fall into the important Group I which is known as "available for service."

The national lottery is set for noon tomorrow. At that time Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson will draw the first serial number from the lottery bowl. The one he draws becomes "Order No. 1" and men holding that number—all over the nation—will be the first men called unless deferred.

By November 4 local boards will begin sending out eight-page questionnaires at the rate of 50 per day to the top men on the order list. The answers given on these questionnaires determine deferment.

Four Groups.

The four groups are: I, Available for service; II, Deferred, essential to industry; III, Deferred, dependents; IV, Deferred by law.

The classification of a man in any of these groups is temporary, and will be changed as the status of the man changes.

Adjutant General Marion Williamson, director of selective service in Georgia, reiterated yesterday several statements in regard to draft questions asked by registrants:

1. Men of draft age, with no dependents, may volunteer for one year's service in the army or navy by requesting their local draft boards to place their name at the top of the order list.

2. Men between the ages of 21 and 36 years who have not registered must do so before tomorrow noon, by appearing before the local draft board.

3. Men who have lost registration certificates can get duplicates from the clerk of their local board.

Draft Will Not Halt Business, Dykstra Says

Asserts Production To Have Priority Over Military Manpower.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(UP) Selective Service Director Clarence A. Dykstra tonight assured employers they need not fear that their businesses will be disrupted by the draft.

He voiced this assurance in setting forth a liberal occupational deferment policy under which manpower needs for producing necessary materials will be given preference over manpower requirements for expanding the nation's armed forces, wherever the two needs conflict.

"It is a basic principle of selective service at this stage of the national defense preparation," Dykstra said, "that material procurement is paramount. Therefore, where two requirements—military manpower vs. production—conflict, production should have priority."

The statement of policy came as conscription officials completed preparations for Tuesday's national lottery which will establish the order in which draft-age men will be classified and considered for military service.

Classifications will be based on questionnaires that will be sent to each of the approximately 17,000,000 draft registrants in the order in which their serial number is drawn in the lottery. Each man will be placed in one of four general classifications: 1—Available; fit for military service (anyone physically fit and otherwise unencumbered); 2—man necessary in his civilian activity; 3—man with dependents; 4—man deferred for legal reasons.

Under rules for Class 2, the section emphasized in Dykstra's latest announcement, a registrant shall be considered a "necessary man" in industry, business, employment, agricultural pursuit, governmental service, or in any other service or endeavor, including training or preparation therefor, only when all of these conditions exist:

"(a) He is, or but for a seasonal or temporary interruption would be, engaged in such activity; (b) he cannot be replaced satisfactorily because of a shortage of persons with his qualifications or skill in such activity; (c) his removal would cause a material loss of effectiveness in such activity."

Loans on Homes In State Increase

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Home loans totaling 4,355 and amounting to $8,149,132 were made in the first nine months of 1940 by the 47 insured savings and loan associations in Georgia, it was reported by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

In the first three-quarters of 1939, by comparison, 3,408 loans were made, aggregating $5,583,520. As of October 1, 1940, the institutions had home mortgage loans on their books amounting to $28,096,000, the corporation report showed.

Investors in these associations now number 25,618. During the January-September period, a total of $7,487,280 in new savings was placed in the institutions. On October 1, total private savings of the public in the associations amounted to $21,386,000, as compared with $15,956,000 on the same date last year.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 28, 1940.

"By Theodore Roosevelt"

Theodore Roosevelt, twenty-sixth President of the United States, would celebrate his 82nd birthday this week, were he alive. That birthday date, October 28, is being honored in all parts of the country by men and women who revere the memory of a man who was, first and foremost, a passionate lover of his country and all for which it stands, and a great American.

It would be well if modern day Americans remembered and seriously considered at this time some of the great truths Theodore Roosevelt enunciated in his lifetime. Therefore this editorial is compiled of quotations from the speeches and the writings of Theodore Roosevelt.

"The United States of America has not the option as to whether it will or will not play a great part in the world. It must play a great part. All that it can decide is whether it will play that part well or badly. And it can play it badly if it adopts the role either of the coward or of the bully. Nor will it help it in the end to avoid either part if it play the other. It must avoid both. . . ."

"Our nation was founded to perpetuate democratic principles. These principles are that each man is to be treated on his worth as a man without regard to the land from which his forefathers came and without regard to the creed which he professes. If the United States proves false to these principles of civil and religious liberty, it will have inflicted the greatest blow on the system of free popular government that has ever been inflicted. . . ."

"There is just one way in which to meet the upholders of the doctrine that might makes right. To do so we must prove that right will make might, by backing right with might. . . ."

"Unjust war is to be abhorred; but woe to the nation that does not make ready to hold its own in time of need against all who would harm it. . . ."

"We cannot sit huddled within our own borders and avow ourselves merely an assemblage of well-to-do hucksters who care nothing for what happens beyond. . . ."

A type that destroys a good yarn by analyzing it has been telling us that Bugbug, on the Egyptian coast, isn't pronounced that way.

Roosevelt and Defense

The Republican party and Wendell Willkie have been leveling for the past month an attack against the visits of President Roosevelt to defense plants. At the same time, Willkie has been complaining that the President cannot obtain maximum production from the nation's plant facilities.

Two questions arise. The first: What would the Republicans and Wendell Willkie have said had the President taken to the hustings, as he had a perfect right to do, instead of inspecting progress of defense? The second: What has been the production result in the factories after the visits of the President?

The answer to the first is obvious. The howl would have resounded across the nation. 'The President," it would have run, "at this critical hour should be in Washington where he belongs to see that the country gets into production, that American rights are safeguarded. He is paid to do that. It is his duty. Yet here we have the spectacle of a President of the United States tramping the country seeking votes in the darkest hour the world has known, an hour fraught with the gravest possibilities for our beloved country." It would have been a natural for the G. O. P. bigwigs.

The answer to the second is that production in the plants he has visited during the past few months has soared. Why? Because the President realizes, and Wilkie does not, that production is the result of a partnership between capital and labor, and that the chief factor in production is labor, willing, strong and confident in the leadership under which it works. Willkie speaks of production as though it were a tangible thing that a businessman can achieve by pushing buttons or writing notes to production chiefs. He utterly neglects, other than to promise retention of labor's gains, the fact that Roosevelt has the confidence of the men upon whom ultimate production depends.

Great argument fills the autumn air, and again it is impressed on the observant that in politics there are three sides to every question: The affirmative, the negative and the truth.

Not Doing So Badly

In all the welter of information and misinformation about the defense preparations of the United States it is interesting to compare conditions as they exist today with those of 1917 after the declaration of war. By that standard the present program stands out in new and shining light.

Five months after the declaration of war this country had only 551,000 men in uniform and only 35,000 had been sent to the continent on which the future of this country was even then being decided. There were almost no blueprints of the organization that had to be constructed to wage war. It was four months before the National Guard was ordered into service and even then not one of the training camps it was to use had been finished. It took almost a year to get four National Guard divisions of the 17 to France. Two divisions did not reach France until 18 months had passed. Only 11 of the 17 saw front line service.

Those that did arrive in France, both regular Army and National Guard (hardly recognizable as such then), chiefly were equipped by the British and the French. Only 130 American-made artillery pieces were used by American troops out of 2,250 in service. Only 667 American planes arrived in time for use.

The Navy record is scarcely better. The first contribution of this country to sea operations in the war zone consisted of six destroyers! And a majority of the so-called World War destroyers, such as those already sent to the British Isles in this war, never saw active service overseas. It was nine months before the fleet could be termed ready for operations on the necessary scale. By November, 1918, the United States fleet in service overseas consisted of eight battleships, five cruisers, five gunboats, 68 destroyers, nine submarines, 26 converted yachts, 120 subchasers and small and large auxiliary ships.

Even though much of the potential strength of the United States today is "on order," it is patent that in 1917, after the declaration of war, the necessary materials were not even "on order." And manpower—enough manpower —was more than a year off.

Today, there are about as many men under arms as there were five months after the outbreak of war in 1917, and within a month the first of the draftees will be en route to reception centers. In 1917 it was more than three months after registration day that draftees first began arriving at camps, which were not completed in any sense of the word. This time they'll be ready for the draftees entering service a full two months ahead of the World War timetable.

The defense program may not be as far ahead as might be wished, but this comparison definitely proves it has been put into effect with an efficiency unparalleled in American history.

An ad in a magazine addressed to the chic co-ed urges us to look for three things in a stocking. Up to now, two has been our quota.

To improve a sloppy speaking stance, a midwestern congressman wears suits without pockets. It remains to be told who settles for the statesman's lunch.

Having embarked for home to organize resistance to Italy, no more is heard of Haile Selassie. However, the Ethiopian has been known to lie in a woodpile for weeks.

We move into the last days of the great canvass—a period of ground swells, roorbacks, final appeals, and that second thought of the judicious, the hedge bet.

Editorial Symposium

EDWARD J. FLYNN AND THE PRESS.

"That eminent authority on national virtue, 'Boss' Flynn, of the Bronx, currently serving as chairman of the Democratic national committee, makes his charge of dictatorship against the American press because he knows that the press is so free from dictatorship that it will give his charges plenty of publicity," says the PORTLAND OREGONIAN. "The Flynn attack was not directed on editorial opinion . . . but on news exposition," the DALLAS MORNING NEWS points out. "He charged that anti-Roosevelt papers print more Willkie news than Roosevelt. Now no newspaper worth the name can afford to be partisan in news presentation. A few are. With most, however, the news is in the hands of hard-working technical men who are very little concerned about politics at all."

"Perhaps we should not be too hard on the Boss," says the DESERT NEWS, of Salt Lake City, adding: "Nothing so angers a man as to be confronted with a job he cannot master. A sense of his own futility exasperates him. Exasperation provokes to spoiled boy tantrums. Mr. Flynn has a tantrum." And the NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PICAYUNE declares, "Bosses of notorious political rings in our great cities have personal reasons for hatred of the American press. That probably explains Boss Flynn's 'blow-off.'"

After saying that Mr. Flynn has "treated himself to the luxury of grumbling at the American press in its treatment of President Roosevelt," the EMPORIA GAZETTE states: "Any fair-minded person who reads the American newspapers today must see a remarkable exhibition of fairness. . . . And, by the way, no other people in the world outside of this United States today are getting the truth as the American press is publishing it in this campaign." And the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL asserts, "It is plain what bothers Mr. Flynn. The American press is free. . . . He would prefer only praise of his candidate, from all quarters, deafening."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

LEARNING HOW WE STAND WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—A comprehensive system of progress reports on the defense program has at last been instituted. Until recently, neither the Secretary of War, nor the Secretary of the Navy, nor the President himself, could obtain the necessary data for a clear, complete picture of the state of the national defense. Now, however, the Army and Navy statistical services are being expanded, the budget bureau is to co-ordinate their work, and the necessary facts will be collected, correlated and tabulated in understandable form.

Obviously, this is a case of better late than never. Yet the failure to institute such a system of progress reports long ago is the best possible proof of the too-evident fact that we are still merely "rearming in our spare time." The incidents leading up to the remedying of this big omission are startlingly illuminating.

HODGEPODGE Information on the state of the national defense has, of course, always been available, but only in piecemeal, unorganized form. Army and Navy reports have been prepared on different bases, with different time factors, and even with different terminology, so that putting them all together has only produced an incomprehensible hodgepodge.

Occasionally, information has seemed to be simply unobtainable, as when the Defense Commission asked the Army to summarize the quantities of raw materials needed for the defense program, and received a bewildering succession of contradictory sets of figures. At other times, information has been collected, but not transmitted to all the proper authorities. For example, at a recent defense council meeting, the President produced a fairly complete progress report on the Navy's ship-building program, in proof of his contention that the program needed speeding up. Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox examined the document in some amazement, for no copy of it had ever been sent to his office.

This state of affairs, which would have been ludicrous if it had not been so serious in its implications, naturally began to disturb the President some time ago. During the summer, he complained repeatedly to both Army and Navy officials that he was not getting the kind of defense data he needed. Nothing material happened, however, until the President finally asked his special assistant, Lauchlin Currie, to tackle the problem for him. Currie promptly consulted Budget Director Harold Smith, who reminded him that the Budget Bureau was charged with obtaining just the information the President desired. The President himself, in an 1939 executive order he had forgotten in the interval, made the bureau responsible for reports on government "work proposed, work actually initiated and work completed."

Smith accordingly got in touch with the Army and Navy statistical services. These were manned by able and hard-working officers, but by officers on tour of duty only. Their work had suffered from lack of continuity, as well as from the elaborate red tape that clutters both defense departments. Both Secretary Knox and Undersecretary of the Navy James Forrestal, the Secretary of War Stimson and Assistant Secretary Robert Patterson were already determined that the statistical services should be strengthened. A new plan was prepared—the plan that is now being put into effect.

THE GOOD AUGURY Under the new plan, data from all the different bureaus of the Army and Navy Departments will funnel up into the offices of the two secretaries. The new statistical services are attached to the secretaries' offices, and are charged with preliminary digestion of the data. When they complete their work, the results are to go to the Budget Bureau, where simple, well-organized tables and reports are to be prepared, giving a bird's-eye view of the progress of the entire defense program in a brief space. And at each month's end the tables and reports are to be brought up to date.

The reports will relate to every phase of defense work. In the case of aviation, for instance, the reports will list all types of planes authorized for construction, show how many are on hand and how many on order, and note when delivery is promised on the types on order. Munitions, ordnance, ships, ships' stores, uniforms, medical supplies and all the other material of national defense will be treated in the same way. Finally, personnel will also be covered, so that it will be possible to tell how many trained men the Army and Navy have, how many they will have in six months, and how many in a year.

To repeat, this is a case of better late than never. Fortunately, besides dramatizing past failures, the belated institution of the new reporting system also indicates awareness that more must be done for the defense program in the future. That is a good augury.

Keep The Record Straight.

It may be rather late, but there has been something rather eating on the old mind, such as it is, for a couple of weeks. So, late or not, let's get it off here, this morning.

Charles Lindbergh made a speech about two weeks ago, over the radio. It was in line with earlier appeals for appeasement and as such does not deserve particular attention. His febrile arguments have been refuted sufficiently in the past. In fact, he could be ignored this time except for one sentence.

He complained, in this sentence, because the United States didn't begin to arm for defense five years ago when, he said, "Europe was arming."

Why didn't Lindbergh tell the truth. He could have done so by the change of one word. If he had said "Germany was arming," he'd have hit the nail on the head. Instead he uttered what amounted to a falsehood. The tragedy of Europe has been that, despite the intense arming by Germany, Europe did not arm.

Had Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium, France armed five years ago Europe would not be the prostrate, bleeding thing she is today.

Fortunately, this country may have aroused herself in time. There is hope now that, combining our own arming with the extension of utmost aid to Britain, we may eb able to make ourselves strong enough to cry halt to Hitler.

If we do this, however, it will be despite the Lindberghs and their ilk. It was precisely because Europe listened to theorists like Lindbergh, because those now crushed nations placed the same reliance on German honor that Lindbergh would place, that they are trampled beneath the feet of the conquerors today.

No, Colonel Lindbergh, it was not Europe that was arming five years ago, to her eternal regret. It was Germany, the same Germany you now seem to regard so highly and the same Germany that will violate every pledge and every trust when this country's turn comes, if it does, just as she did to the other nations that trusted her and did not arm.

"Boys' Life."

"Boys' Life" is the name of the official magazine of the Boy Scouts of America. It is always good reading, especially for boys, and should be eagerly awaited by every Scout in the land. Unfortunately, however, there are quite a few Scouts who do not subscribe to it.

The local Boy Scout council is trying, right now, to induce every parent of a Scout to provide $1.50, the cost of the annual subscription, for his boy so that he may get this magazine.

It seems to me like a good idea. The modern boy is surrounded, wherever he turns, by literature and litter in printed form. Much of the stuff that is blatantly placed before his eyes isn't worth reading and some of it is actually vicious.

What a boy reads will largely determine what sort of man he will become.

Possibly there are publications which should be permitted on public sale. I am not sure about this, being a great stickler for freedom of the press and not being sufficiently familiar with lurid litter-ature to know when that freedom degenerates into license.

But I do know that there is a better way to keep the boy away from undesirable reading than by prohibitions. We of this country should know, by this time, that sumptuary laws end in doing more harm than good. What is forbidden becomes alluring, especially to adventurous youth.

No, the better way is to provide plentifully of good reading matter so that the boy will have neither time nor inclination for the bad. It works two ways. It keeps him desirably occupied and, as he reads more and more of the good, he has less and less taste for the bad.

The boy who has a number of good magazines to read each month, who has access to a good library filled with the fascinating stories of the classic authors of all time, cannot fail to profit thereby.

And "Boy's Life" is as good a monthly publication with which to start the good work as any.

I remember, from my own boyhood, how my father gave me, each Christmas, a bound volume of the "Boy's Own Annual." It was so packed with good stories, good articles for boys, that it provided me with reading for months.

I read all the Henty novels for boys in those volumes, beside many others.

Dad, dig down for a buck and a half and let your Boy Scout get "Boy's Life" for a year. It'll be a swell investment for you.

Twenty-Five Years Aga Today.

From the news columns of Thursday, October 28, 1915:

"London, October 28.—In a lecture last night on the Dardanelles operations, Captain Ashmead-Bartlett, the British press representative in that campaign, said that although the Allies were firmly established in the Dardanelles, he did not think there was any chance of a further invasion."

And Fifty Years Aga.

From the news columns of Tuesday, October 28, 1890:

"Mrs. M. Brown was in Abbeville last week, on her way from Savannah to Philadelphia, where she goes to take possession of $95,000 recently left her by a relative."

China Areas Prosper.

General Li Hanhwen, chairman of Kwantung provincial government, in a report filed in Chungking, states that areas of Kwantung not occupied by Japanese are rapidly on the way to economic recovery. Success is ascribed to the close co-operation between the people and the Chinese fighting forces. In the recent harvesting season Chinese troops helped on the farms. Farm enterprises were promoted, handicraft industries improved, co-operatives established, commodity prices regulated and farm loans granted.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

(The views expressed here are Mr. Pegler's own.)

Sidney Hillman NEW YORK, Oct. 27. Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Worwers of America, is a member of the national defense advisory commission as the representative of labor. Membership in Hillman's union is compulsory in the closed shops. This union is a member of the C. I. O., and Hillman is a vice president of that organization.

With this brief preamble I now cite an act of presumption and coercion so arrogant and pernicious that Hillman's dismissal from any government post having to do with the national defense should follow as the night the day.

On the fourth of this month Mr. Hillman sent out to union members in New York a circular letter signed by Jacob S. Potofsky, the general secretary-treasurer, the like of which if circulated by any large-scale employer of labor would bring the fly-cops swarming up the fire escapes with writs and leg irons from the Labor Relations Board. By the standards which that board has established for the protection of workers against coercion by employers, this is a flagrant offense by a member or, if you will, a submember of the national government.

Campaign Letter "Dear member," the document says, "you cannot vote for President Roosevelt unless you register during registration week.

"A Roosevelt supporter who is eligible to vote and doesn't register might just as well be supporting Willkie," it continues.

And, finally, Mr. Hillman's message declares, "We are mobilized in a crusade to re-elect our great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt. Let's pitch into this job in the true Amalgamated spirit. And let there be no slackers in our midst."

The facsimile signature is that of Mr. Potofsky, but Mr. Hillman's name is printed on the letter-head, so there need be no question that the sentiments are those of the leader himself. Mr. Potofsky acknowledges its authenticity.

There is here revealed an assumption that because a man or woman is, perforce, a member of Hillman's union that individual's choice of a candidate may be dictated by the union, which is to say by Sidney Hillman of the national defense advisory commission. The union not only tells him where and when he may work and how much of his earnings he may keep for himself, but relieves him of the responsibility of deciding which man he prefers for president of the United States. The only reference to Wendell Willkie, who happens to be an American and the nominee of a regular American political party, is a contemptuous back-of-the-hand swipe which suggests that a vote for him would be an act of treachery.

"Remember what the outcome of this election will mean to your wages and hours, your living standards and, most important, your civil and industrial rights," the circular says.

What It Means Not to be naive about it, this is a way of insinuating that Willkie would reduce wages, stretch the hours, depress living standards and impair the civil and industrial rights of the members of Sidney Hillman's union, who would be quick to protest if General Motors or any other firm employing an equal number of workers were to distribute a similar document.

The warning "and let there be no slackers in our midst," following all that goes before, is a plain, crude act of intimidation, for it must be kept in mind that this union has more power than the employer over the individual.

Any intelligent interpretation of the text must show that a vote for Willkie will be regarded as an act of slackerism, and on this basis it may be assumed that a speech in meeting in opposition to the "crusade" would be treason. To be sure, the individual subject may still vote for Willkie in the privacy of the polling booth, but slackerism, undetected, is slackerism still and obviously a heinous offense. If a vote for Willkie is as bad as that, offenders should be discovered and punished by means appropriate to the end or, better still, Mr. Hillman should propose methods to make such treachery impossible.

School's Debt Dazes

Officials of the National University of Mexico City, Mexico, are voicing consternation over the mounting debt, which has reached $300,000,000. Ways and means of decreasing the debt are the subject of public discussions held by student groups and professors. The unfavorable financial situation is ascribed mainly to difficulty in obtaining payment of tuitions and to unfairness in granting discounts to persons capable of paying tuition in full. An urgent appeal has been made to parents to comply with the financial regulations of the university.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

A VERY PRESENT NEED Rarely has the political world seen such a cold-blooded marriage of convenience as that of Mr. Willkie and Mr. John L. Lewis.

It's strategy, not at once apparent because Mr. Lewis is anathema to most of Mr. Willkie's supporters, now has become clear. It was a bold and realistic move.

Lewis has political strength in but two states, Pennsylvania and Illinois. Those two states are key states. Mr. Roosevelt badly will need them if he is to win the election. Mr. Willkie's already excellent chance to win greatly will be enhanced if he can count on the electoral votes of those two states. This explains the move.

Mr. Lewis has been promised the job of secretary of labor, or right to name the man for that cabinet position, if Mr. Willkie wins. I trust that will please all the persons who are looking to Mr. Willkie to do something about the labor board, the Wagner act and all the other "evils," as they say, which "that man" has fostered.

What many persons have overlooked is that Mr. Willkie has a brain trust about him which is as efficient, as pop-eyed and as radical as the one with which Mr. Roosevelt was surrounded in 1932 when something radical was necessary to save the nation. If Mr. John L. Lewis is to be one of his cabinet it will be in keeping with the Willkie set-up.

Well, at any rate, the Willkie party now has become the radical left-wing party and Mr. Roosevelt is the conservative. Industrialists and businessmen who wish to come back into the fold will be welcome.

All this makes me glad that tonight our town is to have as its guest one of America's best-loved teachers and writers. Yale's William Lyon Phelps is to speak tonight at the Georgia Tech auditorium. We have a very present need of a philosopher. I trust he will not speak at all about politics but will, instead, talk about books and poetry and some of his own experiences. His life is one of those rich tapestries of living into which are woven many, many threads of many, many experiences. I want to go hear about them. It will be restful.

'AN IMPERTURBABLE WAY' I have read Mr. Phelps "Autobiography With Letters." It is said of him that he has "an imperturbable way." I judge so, from his book. Certain of the Yale men in our town have said so. We can do with more philosophy and more books and more songs as one half the world seeks to destroy the other and the other half seeks to prepare enough to resist.

Mr. Phelps' long life and experiences make up a sort of philosophy which seems to say that if man keeps on trying and being honest with himself he will work out a satisfactory sort of life which gives him a certain happiness.

I rather liked his test of whether or not a man is "very much alive."

"A very simple test," he wrote, "that one can apply to one's self to discover a range of interest is to take up the daily newspaper and see if there is something on every page of interest; foreign news, local news, athletics, the theater, music, books, stock exchange, etc., and if there is something on every page that interests a man he is very much alive. . . .

"For a shallow optimism I have no respect whatever. But if optimism means one believes that in the long run truth will survive error and good will triumph over evil, and that life is an experience for which one is grateful, then I am most certainly an optimist."

I can do with a little. And so tonight, as we sit there listening, the Willkie men and the Roosevelt men, each hoping, I trust that Dr. Phelps will give us some poetry and something of books and of Shakespeare and sooth us so that, not for at least an hour afterwards, will we begin to feel the old fears and fret with the old worries and the world about us.

THE ART OF TEACHING Mr. Phelps probably is America's best-known teacher and one of its best. He is not "Mr. Chips" but one who has inspired a great many of his students to really worth-while accomplishments. He teaches the most difficult of all things—how to live with one's self.

His idea has been, he writes, "to hang pictures on the walls of the mind so that a man may live with himself and not be bored with himself. The business of the teacher to not to supply information, it is to raise a thirst."

Now and then I have talked about civic clubs. He discusses the hustlers and the boosters who make such nuisances of themselves saying they too often have a false standard of excellence.

"What we wish to know," he wrote, "is something quite different from the word 'more.' Is the community growing in intelligence? Are there better schools, better theaters, better art museums, better churches, better orchestras—are the individual inhabitants growing?"

I hope no one will tell him that Atlanta's symphony orchestra was allowed to die because there was no one to support it; that Roland Hayes can come to town to sing and attract half the audience he, one of the world's greatest artists, should have; that our schools are in a condition which is sending the better teachers out of the state or making them want to go; that we patronize art but little, if at all.

Well, if will be good to hear him. I hope that many persons will. It will be awkward if a half-filled house hears one of the nation's greatest teachers. I have an idea one will be the better for hearing him just as one is better for hearing any true artist sing, or talk or for seeing what a true artist has created.

People Hurrying to a Cyclone Cellar Don't Stop to Fight Pests.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

One of Aesop's fables, remembered from childhood, concerns a man who walked abroad on a winter morning and came upon a viper numbed by cold. Moved by compassion, he picked it up and placed it in his bosom to warm it, and when it had come back to life, it lifted its head and struck him.

Our policy in dealing with Japan has been immoral and dangerous. We have fed and strengthened an avowed enemy. Professing friendship for the Chinese, we have given Japan the weapons to slaughter them. We have openly co-operated with the Japs in their effort to drive white men from the Orient, and our only reward has been shame and humiliation and insult.

And now that we have learned wisdom the hard way, we are in danger of hurting ourselves even more by going too far in the other direction.

We have no present reason to make war on Japan. Everything the Japs have done, from the invasion of Manchuria to the invasion of Indo-China, is a part of the same campaign. If we endured all other parts, including the sinking of the Panay, why should we regard the last part as a cause for war?

That we should undo the wrong we have done is obvious, but we can do that simply by quitting it. We should stop co-operating with the Japs and do nothing more to keep them strong.

But that doesn't mean we should serve Hitler and tie our hands by starting a war in the Pacific.

For the sake of our pride and dignity, and as an evidence of our good sense, we should calmly and deliberately do what is necessary to insure our safety—and do it without regard for what the Japs or anybody else may say about it. We should get new bases wherever the navy thinks them necessary. Do the Japs consult us before building defenses?

If war must come, let Japan start it. Her power is a myth, and we have nothing to fear; but she can keep our navy in the Pacific, and interfere with our efforts to help England, and we can't afford to waste time and effort on her unless we must.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

Magnolias, Yes, But Chitlin's— Well, Perhaps.

One of last week's visiting movie folk—I forget whom—at a dinner—voiced his appreciation of Atlanta's hospitality, and said that before he left town he hoped to see some magnolias and eat a mess of chitlin's. I think Judy Canova had been stuffing him with sou'he'rn atmosphere of the old school. The white-goateed colonel reclining on his shady veranda, sipping mint juleps from silver goblets, frosted on the outside just right, served by a white-headed Negro butler in a tail coat.

Under the influence of an extra cup of coffee I offered to reveal unto him—if he'd stay over a day or two—both magnolias and chitlin's. But he couldn't tarry. I'm rather glad he didn't. I know plenty of magnolias—t h o u g h they're not in bloom and their fragrance does not permeate the southern atmosphere. But I'd be at a loss for chitlin's. Unless I asked for a canned variety. They can everything nowadays. Even cracklin's, which I understand are fat fragments of pork after hog-killin' time, burned down to a crisp and used for makin' cracklin' bread—unless you prefer them straight. I wouldn't know. I lay off fat meats—which is why my figure is the envy of all and sundry. I never did know where that "sundry" came in, but I'm a slave to traditional phrases.

But I wouldn't have known where to procure chitlin's for this earnest seeker after southern atmosphere. Unless one or all of the national packing houses put 'em up in cans. Probably they do. But hardly for the Atlanta trade.

Aching Void.

Directly in front of me, when I lift my eyes from the typewriter (and, I assume, at other times as well) is a bookcase. A venerable bookcase with glass doors.

If I must look at something I'd as soon it were a bookcase as anything else. Much better than a wall covered with out-of-date calendars and defunct posters announcing John Robinson's circus of 1912, though that was a good circus, I'll make haste to concede.

But this bookcase annoys me. Rather, its contents. Or a missing unit of its contents.

Straight ahead of my vision, while I am trying to think up great thoughts, are three shelves of the Encyclopedia Americana, in full calf. Which is quite all right. Some day, I resolve, I'm going to open that bookcase and extract a volume of said encyclopedia and learn things. A lot of things.

But there's a hole in the row of books on the bottom shelf. Volume XV is missing. Vol. XIV covers—and completely, I assume, Rud-Spa, inclusive. But if a fellow started in to read an encyclopedia he wouldn't want to be interrupted just after he'd waded through Spa and wanted to know how the story came out.

That gap in the bottom shelf disturbs me. It looks like the hole in your dental facade after you've had a front tooth pulled. I keep wondering who embezzled Vol. XV. And why. And what would come after Spa? Spade or Spank or Spasm?

If the miscreant who abstracted Vol. XV is still above ground and able to get about and reads this column—which I'm sure he does unless he is senile—will return Vol XV I'll be grateful. He can tuck it under his overcoat and slip in while I'm not here and no questions will be asked.

It's not that I have a burning itch to read Vol. XV, but I just don't like that gap in the bookshelf. If it actually were a missing front tooth I could stick my tongue in the hole and be comforted. But, in case some subscriber should come in, what would I look like, sticking my tongue in a bookcase? Anyway, I don't think it would be soothing.

Economic Heresy.

What makes a town? Why and how come?

The answer isn't easy.

I'm thinking of several Georgia towns I know. County seat towns. Old towns. With good people.

Old towns. Yes. With younger towns not far away. Not such young towns. One is preparing to celebrate its 50th birthday.

This young 50-year-old town is getting somewhere. Going places. Its neighbors—which were there before—are just getting along and that's all.

If I were called upon—and paid for the effort—I could deliver eloquent addresses on the why and the wherefore, armed with statistics.

But I'd have to be furnished with the statistics. And, after all, they don't mean so much.

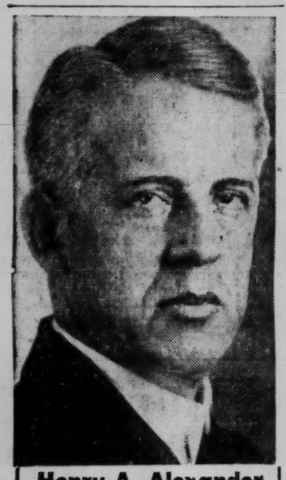

But I can't get all hot and worried about the quiet little towns which have watched their upstart neighbors get "on the map."

I have friends in quite a number of them. Visit them. Maybe spend the night with them. I've never had to complain about a shortage of fried chicken and hot biscuits. And my friends are not big shots or captains of industry. Just plain folks.

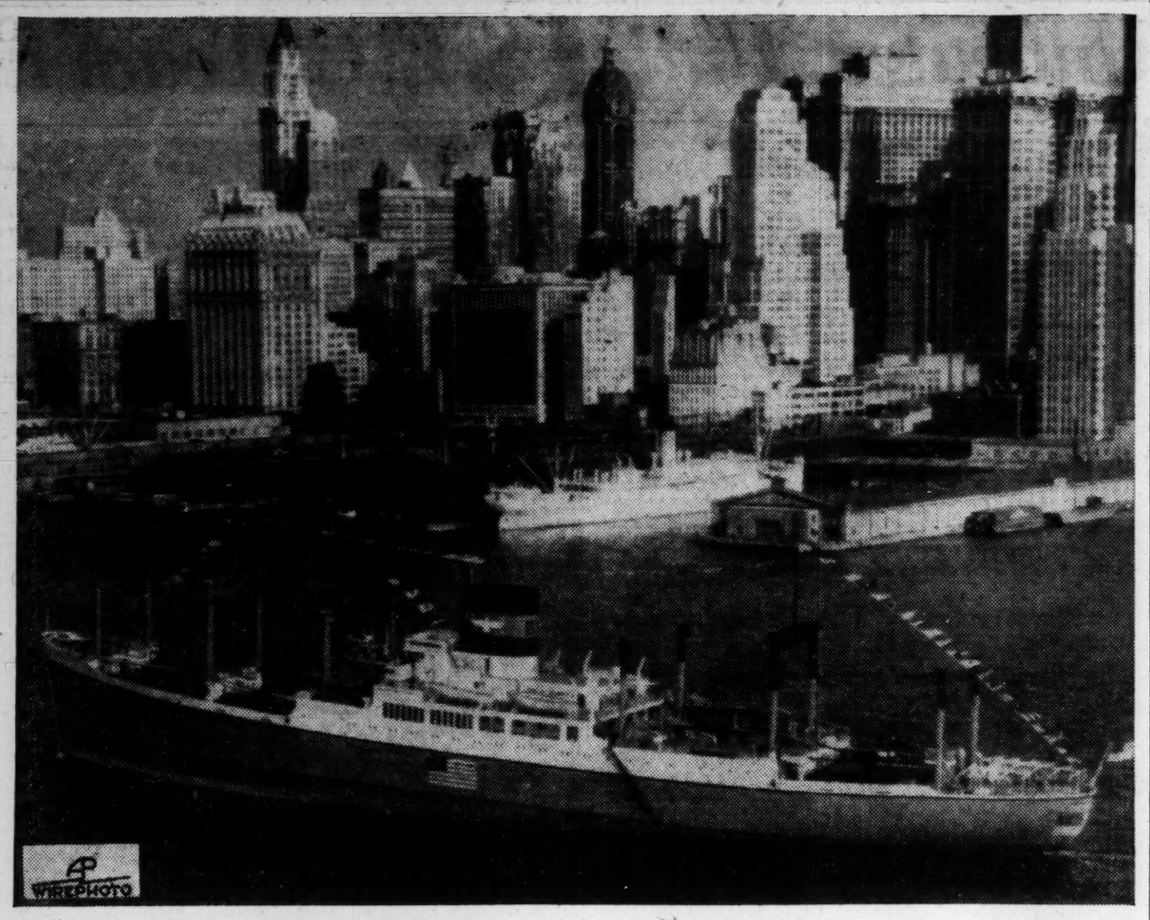

Affection for a quiet little town may be heresy, but as Patrick Henry remarked about treason, "make the most of it," or words to that effect.

If a family can live in a nice, quiet, easy-going town and know and like everybody and earn three good meals a day and pick up a few good books and listen to the radio and come out on January 31 not owing more than a few bucks, why should its members worry about the up-and-coming activities of a neighbor town? That's a darn sight more than the average Atlanta family can do. And Atlanta is the hub of the southeast and so busy everybody tumbles over his neighbor at a street intersection. Why? I don't know.

Teacher Cut Boy's Tongue, Mother Says

Scissors Used in Classroom, Charge; Woman Denies Accusation.

FAIRVIEW, N. J., Oct. 27.—(AP) Joseph V. Boratto, president of the Fairview Board of Education, said today a 31-year-old woman teacher at School No. 3 had been suspended pending a hearing before the board on a charge of cutting the tongue of a first grade pupil with a scissors. The teacher, who has been employed for 10 years, denied the charge, Boratto added.

Mrs. Mae Pette, of 226 Ninth street, filed an atrocious assault and battery complaint with police against the teacher and then in a statement lodged with Boratto accused the teacher of inflicting a slight cut on the bottom of the tongue of her son, Richard, 6, in a classroom Friday.

The teacher was released on her own recognizance by Fairview police to await a hearing before Judge Leland F. Ferry in Bergen county district court in Hackensack. Fairview Police Sergeant George Sedore said Mrs. Pette's complaint set forth that the teacher used scissors in injuring the child.

Boratto said the teacher told him she had been trying to correct Richard's practice of sticking out his tongue and after sending him back to his desk she found he had his pencil in his mouth. She added, Boratto said, that she washed the child's mouth and found he had a slight cut.

Boratto quoted the statement by the mother as contending that the teacher called Richard before the classroom because he was talking, told him to stick out his tongue, and then cut it with a pair of scissors. She added that two boy pupils told her that they saw the teacher do it.

The board hearing was listed for Tuesday.

Six New England States Show Willkie Gains, Gallup Reveals

Increases of From One to Four Per Cent Revealed; Roosevelt, However, Is Leading in Three Most Populous States.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27.—New gains for Wendell Willkie in the six New England states—on the heels of the candidate's swing through that section—are indicated today in a survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

The survey found the Republican candidate gaining from one to four points in each New England state, one of the most significant being a four-point gain in New Hampshire which places that state in the Willkie column at this time. However, sentiment in most of the six states is between 50 and 54 per cent for one candidate or the other, or within the margin of error applicable to this survey.

* * * *

The state-by-state trend since the last Institute report October 18 is:

Today's Survey—	Roosevelt	Willkie	Gain for Willkie
Maine	46%	54%	+1
New Hampshire	49	51	+4
Vermont	43	57	+3
Massachusetts	51	49	+3
Rhode Island	55	45	+3
Connecticut	54	46	+4

Taken together, the six New England states account for only 41 electoral votes—less than New York state alone—but the latest turn in New England sentiment is important in view of the fact that this was one of the few areas to show gains for President Roosevelt in the previous Institute survey.

The current survey, in which interviewing took place between October 14 and 22, gives a reflection of New England sentiment after Mr. Willkie's recent visit to the area.

* * * *

It is interesting to note, however, that despite Willkie's gains in New England President Roosevelt still maintains a lead in three of the section's most populous states—Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

In the current survey the "undecided" vote in each of the New England states was as follows: Maine, 6 per cent; Massachusetts, 7 per cent; New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island, 8 per cent, and Connecticut 11 per cent.

F. D. R. Backed By Majority, Fortune Finds

Recent Loss Still Leaves Him With 57 Per Cent of Votes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Mr. Roosevelt has dropped about 2 per cent in popular favor during the last six weeks, but as the campaign entered the homestretch the President's popularity rating was still 57 per cent among persons with definite opinions on the major-party candidates, the latest Fortune Survey of Public Opinion reveals today.

The Roosevelt majority is heavily concentrated in the south and west, however, where such majorities are not needed, and in the more vital areas of New England, the middle Atlantic and central states the contest is much closer, with microscopic leads for Mr. Willkie, which raise the possibility that the Republicans could translate their present popular minority into an Electoral College majority.

"In measuring the nation's attitude toward the two major-party candidates," Fortune explains, "the survey here makes a three-ply approach, with the asking of three questions: What do people think of Roosevelt? What do people think of Willkie? And how do people expect to vote?

"For reasons presently to be examined, the outcome of the election may well hinge upon the differences in the answers to the three questions. But by far the most important of the three is this:

"Which one of these four statements comes closest to expressing your own opinion of Mr. Roosevelt?" The replies:

In times like there it is absolutely essential to have a man like Roosevelt for President, 25.5 per cent.

There may be some reasons against having Roosevelt as President for another four years, but on the whole it is the best thing to do, 27.8 per cent.

While Roosevelt has done some good things, the country would be better off under Willkie for the next four years, 21.2 per cent.

The re-election of Mr. Roosevelt for the next four years would be a very bad thing for the country, 19.0 per cent.

Don't know, 6.5 per cent.

57 Per Cent F. D. R.

"If the figures are adjusted to eliminate the 'don't know' answers (which may or may not play a role in the final elections)," Fortune explains, "this comes to a vote of 57 per cent favoring the President, against 43 opposing him—an impressive majority, though not so large as the one he had four years ago.

The Fortune Survey of Public Opinion then asked: "Regardless of what you hope, who do you think will win—Roosevelt or Willkie?" The replies were:

Roosevelt	66
Willkie	18
Don't know	16

"Of the people who expect to vote for Willkie, 36.2 per cent now think he will lose, 23.7 per cent don't know how he will come out," Fortune states. "Among New Deal voters, 2.3 per cent believe a Willkie victory probable and only 6.7 per cent don't know what to expect."

F. D. R. Electors To Meet Friday

MACON, Ga., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Georgia's Democratic presidential electors will be guests of Ivan Allen Sr., Atlanta businessman, at a luncheon here Friday.

Allen is state chairman of the Democratic campaign committee of Georgia, and is a presidential elector from the first Georgia district.

The Young Democratic Clubs of Georgia will be in session here on Friday also.

Georgia Grads In N. Y. Will Go To Athens Rites

Will Attend Cornerstone Laying of Gilbert Memorial Infirmary.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—New York alumni of the University of Georgia announced tonight they would send a delegation to Athens, Ga., for the cornerstone laying of the Gilbert Memorial infirmary.

S. Price Gilbert, retired associate justice of the supreme court of Georgia, recently donated $100,000 for the construction of the infirmary.

It will be a memorial to Gilbert's father, the late Dr. Jasper Newton Gilbert, Confederate army medical officer and country doctor who had the reputation of never having submitted a bill for medical services.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Dr. William Lyon Phelps is in Atlanta today for an address at 8:15 o'clock this evening at the Georgia Tech auditorium under the auspices of the Atlanta branch of the American Association of University Women. Dr. Phelps will speak on "The Romance of Science and the Truth of Fiction." The proceeds from the lecture will be used to help women who have made a success in their chosen field obtain advance study; to help worthy girls secure a college education; and to help members of the International Association of University Women who are now "refugeed" in England.

Dr. Phelps is one of America's truly great personalities. His 40 years at Yale brought him countless contacts of national and international scope. His books and magazine articles, according to his publishers, have enjoyed an audience of not less than 10,000,000 readers. His lecture tours have carried him to every part of the country, and his radio broadcasts have reached uncounted millions.

I would put his "The Life and Letters of William Lyon Phelps" among the half-dozen great American books. I guess this will start something. For example, t h e names of the other five books, etc., etc.

But one must see Dr. Phelps before you can fix anything like a final opinion of the man. One must listen to him talk, preferably in conversation. I would unhesitatingly name him as my No. 1 nominee as an American conversationalist. I can never forget the evenings some of us have been privileged to spend with him about an open fire in meetings of The Ten, and in other small groups.

If you have lived this long without seeing and hearing William Lyon Phelps, don't let this day pass without claiming that privilege. I don't know whether there are any seats left for the lecture tonight or not, but take it from me, get one, if you possible can. You will be helping a very worthy cause, and you will be doing yourself a mighty good turn.

For one thing, he will make you laugh, and everyone needs a good laugh just now. He will make you laugh tonight, and that laugh tonight will help you to laugh tomorrow. Dr. Phelps believes that there are some fine things left in the life of today and some fine things assured for the life of tomorrow. He believes in God, and, for that reason, he believes in man. And whilst he clearly and frankly recognizes the tragedy of much of the life of the past and present, he believes with Browning that the "best is yet to be"—that God reigns, and that God is love. He believes that Jesus came to bring life, even life more abundant.

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Crazy Quilt Football annually follows a crazy quilt pattern. Here are a few of the reasons why it's such a great game—

Lafayette 19, Army 0
Syracuse 3, Columbia 0
Arkansas 21, Ole Miss 20
Brown 9, Holy Cross 6
Tulsa 7, T. C. U. 0
Richmond 9, V. M. I. 7
St. Mary's 9, Fordham 6

We could go on and on, but these are fair samples. The answer is that football talent is more evenly distributed in modern football.

Take a team like Lafayette. Army isn't the first major foe to salute Lafayette this season. N. Y. U. was another.

It does seem a sad commentary on the fighting men of West Point that they should take it like that in football, however.

Maybe the Army ought to take a tip from Navy. Coach Swede Larsen announced several weeks ago Navy was through building character and was out to win to bolster the future officers' morale. Navy is unbeaten.

Modern football is running the rating experts crazy. Their guess is hardly better than yours. For naturally there is no way of telling that teams like Franklin and Marshall, Lafayette, etc., will rise up and beat the big schools.

It's all very helpful in easing the strain on coaches, however. An unbeaten or untied season for a team playing a consistent schedule is becoming a rarity.

They're Missed The thought probably has occurred to you as you've watched Georgia Tech play this season that the Jackets are missing something or somebody. And you're right.

If Tech's not missing Howard Ector there's not a thrifty gent in Scotland. Tech's missing Howard Ector's clever ball handling. It's difficult to replace a boy like "Bad" Ector.

And another thing, Tech is missing Bobby Pair. The attack was so designed that the speedy Pair would be of tremendous offensive aid on reverses and on the receiving end of passes.

Pair, a confirmed member of the Knee Kap Klan, may not be available to Tech all season.

The Tech offense is clever, all right, but it is not ranking with the offense of 1939. Ector may be the answer, or Pair.

Defensively Tech may be stronger. There's no question about it when Big Jim Wright is sound. He's a great line backer.

But, sir, you don't lose a boy like Bobby Pair whom you've counted heavily on and not feel it on a football team.

It has hurt Tech as much offensively for Pair to be out

Detroit Tops Villanova, 10-0, In Sunday Tilt

Field Goal and Blocked Punt Win Game Before 30,251.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Detroit university's undefeated Titans tallied all their points in the first half then turned back four late Villanova threats to defeat the Wildcats 10-0 before 30,251 football fans at Shibe park today.

Detroit scored its fifth victory and handed Villanova its second straight setback on a first-period field goal and a touchdown in the second quarter.

Frank Hayes booted a 31-yard field goal to give the Titans a lead they never relinquished. George Gesquiere added the touchdown by plunging over after Ed Rice blocked a Villanova punt and recovered on the Wildcat three. Ted Pavelec place-kicked the goal.

Villanova, held to a single first down in the first half, went deep into Titan territory four times in the final quarters. Three times they were inside the 10, but always were thrust back. Detroit had 14 first downs compared with seven for Villanova, outgaining the Cats by a total of 361 yards to 142.

30 Cities Send Bowlers Here On November 9

Thirty southeastern cities are expected to send entrants to the eighth annual southern individual bowling tournament here November 9, sponsors said yesterday.

The tournament, with divisions for both men and women, will be restricted to bowlers from Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and the Carolinas, a departure from previous southern tourneys under sponsorship of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress.

Ellis Simpson, of Charlotte, won the men's championship last year with a 10-game 1,272, which beat a fellow townsman, Art Keever, who bowled 1,229. Ida Simmons, world's champion, of Norfolk, took the 1939 women's title with 1,211. Neither she nor Helen Randlett, of Richmond, who was third last year, are eligible for the 1940 tourney. Dorothy Woodall, Atlanta, was second among the women last year.

STUDENTS AND STARS.

With all the busy gossip of pay and prosleyting in college football that now rides in the autumn air, you'd get the general idea from many sources that good students and good football players belong to two different leagues.

This happens to be entirely incorrect. On a general average the good student still makes the better football player, and in the great majority of cases the football player has to be a better student than the college average to keep on playing football. There are exceptions, of course. I am speaking of the leading average per cent.

"The best team I ever had at Dartmouth," Jess Hawley writes me, "was practically all Phi Beta Kappa. This 1924 team was quite unusual. They were certainly not noted for their man power, but they went through the season unbeaten. That year I could put a team on the field, no man playing out of position, no man under a second-string, and every one a Phi Beta Kappa rating.

"The varsity team included in the backfield, Dooley, Oberlander, Hall and Leavitt; ends, Bjorkman, Kelly and Sage; line, Whittaker, Hardy, Deal, Parker and Smith. Any sane coach wants a good type of student. Any sane coach knows how much intelligence counts for. Tramp athletes are rarely helpful, especially in hard games. I like a hard, fast-running back and also good blockers and rugged tacklers. But I'd like to see them all Phi Beta Kappas. Smartness also counts."

THE TOUGH QUERY.

Just as the letter from Jess Hawley came in we stepped into the quicksands of this football debate.

"Tell me this," writes H. L. F. "Why shouldn't a team composed of fifteen Carnegie unit men be a better and a smarter team than one composed of many who can't pass four Carnegie units. (The Carnegie unit is a scholastic entrance rating).

"Why shouldn't a team that demands high scholarship standards be better than one that doesn't bother about that side of the college fence? That's something I can't figure out, if football is supposed to demand brains as well as physical speed or power."

In the first place, you'll find among many of the leading teams today—such as Cornell, Michigan, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Stanford, Washington, Georgia Tech, Notre Dame and others—that only good students get by. I don't mean Phi Beta Kappas. I mean good, average grades.

But there is another side. It is almost impossible for teams that carry the higher entrance or classroom units to go in for the proselyting-pay combination. They can't get the men in, and they can't keep them in, either, if they happen to slip by.

Teams that have lighter entrance standards, easier classroom work, can shoot at the field and get stars other could never hope to get. I could name you twenty men who tried to get into certain colleges, couldn't make the grade, and then came back on rival teams to beat those colleges.

Is that what you call "a fair field and no favor?"

The main trouble in college football today is the scout pursuit and the offers made to high school and prep school stars. You might be surprised to know how many of these have told me of the offers they were made, and I've discovered they usually accepted the best offer—which is none too good for the kid. You know that.

Here is another angle. The chief trouble comes from the demand of alumni for a winning team, and from the pressure put on coaches to get a winning team or get fired.

NOT UNIVERSAL.

This is not universal. Also you might remember that a big change for the better is under way. Some universities are developing brains.

Indiana gave Bo McMillan a ten-year contract, win, lose, draw or anything else. Texas has given Dana Bible a ten-year contract and Matty Bell has about the same arrangement at S. M. U. Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech, runs for life.

Who ever heard of a Latin, Greek or English prof hired on a one-year contract? Make 'em Homers or Vergils or Shelleys—or get fired! Take the winning pressure off the coaches. How you can keep the alumni pack in hand is something else.

I recall the time that Georgia alumni were demanding the scalp of Harry Mehre in the middle of a tough season. Mehre had led Georgia to five consecutive victories over Yale, better then than Yale is today.

I was in the middle of that morass. I know Stevens, Lou Little and other leading coaches rated Mehre among the leaders. So Georgia let him go to Mississippi, then well down in the list. Check on the comparative showings of Georgia and Mississippi since Mehre left Athens.

The demand for winning teams, the overenthusiastic alumni—with

Clemson and Duke Leading In Southern Tigers Turn to Tulane as Devils Gun for Yellow Jackets.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 27.—(AP) Clemson and Duke, safely entrenched at the top at the Southern Conference football heap, will turn their attention this week to the renewal of rivalries with Southeastern Loop members.

The powerful Clemson Tigers are undefeated in five appearances—three against conference foes—and will invade New Orleans for a clash with the upcoming Tulane squad which nosed out North Carolina, 14-13, Saturday.

If Coach Frank Howard's team can get by the Greenies and hurdle dangerous Auburn on the following weekend, only underdog Southwestern and Furman elevens will stand in the way of a spotless season for Clemson and the likelihood of another Bowl bid. It was Tulane which handed the Tigers their only reverse last year, by a narrow 7-6 margin.

Duke celebrates homecoming day against Georgia Tech, and the Blue Devils will be anxious to even the count with the Southeastern Circuit for the Tennessee setback earlier this season. Duke's victory margin over Tech in 1939 was 7-6.

Clemson has only to whip Furman in the curtain game of the schedule to retain at least a share of the conference championship with Duke. The Tigers have rolled up 86 points to 20 in conquering North Carolina State, Wake Forest and South Carolina.

Duke has whipped two loop contestants, V. M. I. and Wake Forest by identical 23-0 scores, and has yet to face Davidson, North Carolina and N. C. State.

All other squads in the 15-member circuit have been trounced at least once except Maryland, and the Old Liners' schedule of only two family scraps counts them out of the title picture.

The two loop games this Saturday will find William and Mary at V. M. I. and Furman at N. C. State, the latter a night tilt.

Intersectional highlights of the card include North Carolina's trek to New York to meet Fordham, the annual Washington and Lee-West Virginia clash at Charleston, W. Va.; South Carolina's game at Penn State, and Wake Forest's engagement with George Washington at Washington Friday night.

Ole Miss Bowl Hopes Fade; Vols Unbeaten

By PRICE HOWARD.
Associated Press Correspondent.

The Southeastern Conference, claiming several potential giant-killers five weeks ago, reached the season's half-way post today with only Tennessee remaining undefeated and untied as another threat swept back into the conference championship picture.

Auburn's improved powerhouse moved up behind Tennessee and Mississippi, the Big 13's tied leaders, by eliminating Georgia Tech with alert football, 16-7, to give the Engineers their first loop setback since 1938. The Plainsmen, converting two breaks into touchdowns, rearranged the race so that defeat or tie for Tennessee and Ole Miss would give them a chance to snatch off at least a share of the 1940 spoils.

DEAL LOST.

Auburn, checked inside the conference only in a tie with powerful Mississippi State, lost its plunging halfback, Rufus Deal, in beating the Orange Bowl champions. He suffered a fractured left arm.

While Tennessee's resourceful Vols won their fifth straight game and their second in the Southeastern, Mississippi's dreams of an unbeaten team collapsed before the furious finish of the Arkansas Razorbacks, 21-20, in a non-conference duel. Tulane, Alabama, Georgia Tech, Auburn and Louisiana State already had been thumped from their high pre-season ratings, either inside or outside the circuit, or both.

Mississippi, with little Junie Hovious and big Merle Hapes in their usual star role, saw its national hopes fade on the wings of a partially blocked punt after running up a 20-7 margin. Ole Miss, however, remained even with Tennessee in the conference parade with two earlier wins in the circuit.

Tennessee finally overcame Florida, 14-0, after only a mediocre first-half showing with 48 and 50-yard touchdown dashes by Buist Warren and Bill Nowling. L. S. U. trimmed Vanderbilt, 7-0, in another S. E. C. battle Saturday. Unbeaten Kentucky suffered its second loop draw when Sophomore Frankie Sinkwich led Georgia to a 7-7 tie in the last three minutes.

Mid-season finds Tennessee facing L. S. U., Southwestern (Tenn.) Virginia, Kentucky and Vandy in its path before another possible Bowl bid. Mississippi has Vandy, Holy Cross, West Tennessee, Mississippi State and Miami to hurdle. Auburn runs up against Georgia, Clemson, L. S. U., Boston College, Florida and Villanova. Mississippi State, unbeaten but tied once in the Southeastern, must play Southwestern (Tenn.), L. S. U., Millsaps, Mississippi and Alabama.

The Southeastern increased its margin over the Southern Conference. Tulane repulsed North Carolina, 14-13, with a blocked punt in the last two minutes and Mississippi State registered its fourth victory by outscoring N. C. State, 26-10. Chattanooga bumped Sewanee, 20-6. Alabama was idle.

Tennessee will be host to L. S. U. and Mississippi invades Vanderbilt in defense of their leadership Saturday. Auburn stakes its potential claim against Georgia at Columbus and Alabama visits Kentucky in two other loop engagements this week.

Lucky 20-Year-Old Pants Put Tulane on Road to Victory

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A 20-year-old pair of pants with more darns than Grandfather's socks is credited with starting Tulane back on the road to victory.

Here's the story:

Trainer "Monk" Simons' green knee-breeches, worn over two decades, had become something of a tradition in southern football but the constant wear had made them thin and patched so this season Monk decided to step out in a pair of brand, spanking new ones.

Tulane lost the opening game . . . and the next two.

Then, with coaches, players and fans puzzled, Monk switched back to his lucky pants and immediately the Wave romped over Rice, and blocked a last-minute punt a week later to turn the Tide against North Carolina.

Texas Aggies And Stanford Come Through

Northwestern and Minnesota Keep Pace With Winning Rallies.

By BILL BONI.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—From a football weekend that had more Merriwell finishes than the wildest movie script and more surprises, that your Aunt Emma's Christmas box, the middle west emerged today with a hat full of teams clamoring for more than sectional recognition.

In the Western Conference alone are three clubs that must figure in anyone's national ranking. Each has won a major intersectional victory—Northwestern over Syracuse, Minnesota over Washington, and Michigan over California and yesterday over Penn—and each in addition has cleaned up in its own territory.

Besides these, the midwest has Notre Dame, still looking for some team to give its first-stringers a 60-minute workout and hardly likely to find it in next Saturday's meeting with inept Army, and Detroit, which stayed in the all-winning ranks by downing Villa Nova today, 10-0.

While the east was losing Fordham and Columbia from its unbeaten-untied list, Mississippi was knocked off in the south and Texas in the southwest, the midwest foursome came through impressively on all counts.

HARMON'S DAY.

Michigan's meeting with Penn had been headlined in advance as a duel of brilliant individuals. It turned out to be another great show by the Wolverines' Tommy Harmon, who ran 19 yards and passed 15 yards for the two touchdowns, kicked the extra points and got valuable assists from Bucking Back Bob Westfall and Blocking Back Forest Evashevski as Michigan smothered Frank Reagan to win, 14-0.

Minnesota and Northwestern, rivals in next Saturday's major attraction, both came from behind. The Gophers, with George Franck racing to four touchdowns, whipped Iowa, 34-6. Northwestern, with Bill De Correvont on the sidelines, intercepted an Indiana pass and blocked a punt in the last quarter to top the Hoosiers, 20-7. Notre Dame's reserves again got a big play in a 26-0 whipping of Illinois.

Sectionally, the day's other standout performances were delivered by Cornell in the east and Stanford on the Pacific coast. The Ithacans, battered and buffaloed by an 89-yard Ohio State scoring drive early in the first quarter, picked themselves up off the floor to clear their biggest mid-season obstacle with a 21-7 victory, biggest score ever run up on any Francis Schmidt coached Ohio State team. Stanford, sparked for a change by Quarterback Frank Albert, put over two touchdowns in the last four minutes for a similar count against Southern California, which had won last year by 33-0.

Five other major eastern elevens stayed in the winning column. Navy, which next tackles Penn, rolled up 17 first downs to one in walloping Yale, 21-0, for the first time. Army, on the other hand, dropped a 19-0 decision to all-winning Lafayette, which sent Jimmy Farrell over for two tal, lies in little more than a minute.

21 FOR GEORGETOWN.

Georgetown ran its unbeaten streak to 21, five more than Cornell, with an easily-won 26-0 conquest of New York University. Penn State's little Pepper Petrella was the big noise in an 18-0 defeat of Temple. Boston College, in its second successive breather, crushed St. Anselm's, 55-0.

The Texas Aggies, southwest pace-makers, had their work cut out for them. Up against a powerful Baylor line the Aggies had to put on full pressure all the way to nose out the Bears, 14-7.

Right up with the best of them, beaten only by Minnesota, is Nebraska. The Huskers, with Harry Hopp bucking, running wide, punting, as well as passing for one touchdown, stopped Missouri, 20-7, to stay on top in the Big Six.

Kicking played a vital part in five of the day's big surprises. Joe Aguirre's 40-yard field goal in the last quarter gave St. Mary's a 9-6 win over Fordham, the Rams' first defeat; 145-pound Bunky Morris, a slippery sophomore, drop-kicked a 32-yarder with 40 seconds to go as Syracuse topped Columbia, 3-0; Captain Lou Young's extra point gave Dartmouth its first triumph, by 7-6 over Hard; Ernie Savignano's 28-yard drop-kick brought Brown home ahead of Holy Cross, 9-6, and Bob Forte's 35-yard run of a partially-blocked Mississippi kick set up the touchdown that enabled Arkansas to dump Ole Miss from the all-winning squad, 21-20.

Texas' first defeat, 13-0 by Rice, was another stunner. The Longhorns' heralded Jack Crain was hobbled to ½ yards while Rice Sophomore T. A. Weems sprinted 41 yards to start the first scoring drive and scored the second touchdown after he had run back the second-half kickoff 56 yards. The southwest got another shock as Tulsa held the upper hand throughout to nip Texas Christian, 7-0.

Boiled down sectionally, the rest of the day's developments took in:

EAST—Princeton suddenly discovered a running attack, good for 293 yards and a 28-13 victory over Rutgers, thus knocking the scarlet out of the unbeaten, untied and unscored-on list in one blow. Colgate, with Indian Bill Geyer racing to three scores, ended little Mississippi College's winning streak, 31-0. Carnegie Tech, playing in the class it intends to stay in from now on, beat Case, 14-0. Catholic U.'s Pete Sachon pitched three passes that were good for 120 yards, two touchdowns and a 13-0 score over West Virginia Wesleyan.

MIDWEST—Two touchdowns in the last three minutes, the second right on the final gun, gave Wisconsin a 14-13 edge over Purdue, which made the mistake of electing to lose the ball on downs rather than to kick in the final minute. Kansas State topped Kansas, 20-0, as Ken Duwe piled up 140 yards. Oklahoma's Johnny Martin scored twice to help beat Iowa State, 20-7. Texas Tech won a 10-13 intersectional victory over Marquette. Santa Clara's Broncos completed six passes for 67 yards, but missed a field goal in the last half-minute to finish in a scoreless tie with Michigan State.

FAR WEST—Bob Dehham's passes were the deciding factor as Oregon State beat U. C. L. A., 7-0. The Statue of Liberty play helped Washington come from behind to overtake suprisingly stubborn California, 7-6. Washington State's Bill Sewell was the standout in a 6-6 deadlock with Oregon.

Sharp SHOOTIN' by AL SHARP

WHAT NEXT, TEDDY HAYES?

We dubs have a tough enough time playing golf in any manner, so this one was surprised the other day at an exhibition of deftness from both sides.

So good was Pro Teddy Hayes, of Candler Park, at hitting the ball from the left side and from the right, which he made tough by using only one hand, that it would have been no surprise to see him grasp the driver between his teeth and turn a somersault to make connections with a nice tee shot.

If that is complicated enough to warrant a diagram, please be patient. I haven't figured out some of the shots myself.

SHARP

On the first round of nine holes, Hayes, who had scored a 26 on the par-32 course, using both hands and swinging the club on the right side, elected to play a southpaw game. He used both hands. And he shot a 39.

When he had finished that, Ted decided to use only his right hand for swinging the clubs from the right side. He started with four pars, one being the result of a pitch dead to the third hole, which he could not have made two-handed, or throwing the ball, for that matter.

When darkness caught us at the seventh hole on that last round, Hayes had par in for a 35, which is 3 under par. Not bad for one hand.

Shooting one-handed and doing it well isn't exactly a phenomenal feat. Jimmy Nichols, who formerly played a lot of golf in Georgia, has only one arm, the left, and he does qnite well. The other day, Nichols, who hits from the right side, sank a 279-yard hole-in-one and finished the 18 holes for a score of 68 on a Beaumont, Texas, course.

However, most players adept at shooting one-handed have no alternative, like Nichols, and it is natural that they become better at playing in that manner than one, like Hayes, who seldom goes around without using both hands.

A player like Hayes, who can shift from the orthodox two-handed swing to the left side and one-handed hitting is unusual, to say the least.

Hayes developed his ability at switching while caddying, and he won a few wagers at playing both ways back in those days. Now he keeps his hand in with an occasional round on the freak side.

He's glad of it, too, because shots from the left side have paid off several times. The one he remembers well came during the City Open at Capital City last year. "The ball was up against a tree and I couldn't get to it swinging from the right," explained Teddy. "I turned around and used that left-handed swing to knock the ball right by the stick. That shot brought me a $25 prize."

If Teddy hasn't a left-hander's club with him when he wants to switch, he uses a right-hander's, turning it over so the blade will handle the ball.

All of which just goes to show you that we dubs ought to learn that shot. We need it more than anyone else, trees being so eager to lean against the balls the wrong way.

But before we start practicing that TREE shot, let's put in a little more time on the other way. Perhaps that would pay bigger dividends.

High Gun Honors Shared by Four

Four shooters tied for high gun honors Sunday at the West End Gun Club with 48x50. Those tying were P. M. Gilbert, E. W. Gottenstratter, Robert Reagin, and Roy Reagin.

Bill McBride took the Class "C" honors with 46x50.

A. C. Frazier led the novice shooters with a score of 21-25. Frank Bennett was second with 17x25. In his first attempt at skeet F. H. Woodcock led the professionals with a very nice score of 75x75.

EAST LAKE DOGFITE.

Seventeen faursomes took part in the weekly dogfite tournament Sunday afternoon at East Lake. The winning foursome had a score of 117. They were Pete Barnes, Ralph McClelland Jr., J. J. McGeary and A. P. McElroy.

Two foursomes were next at 122. They were S. E. Gill, Ford Fisher, Charlie Elliott, Luke Woodall and Harold Sargent, E. A. Lamons, L. A. Scott and Dr. T. E. McGeachey.

Two foursomes were next with a score of 123. They were Alan Yates, S. M. Haw, Dr. J. C. Wright, R. L. Porter and L. D. Thompson, R. S. Mather, A. N. Patton and B. E. Sale.

Two foursomes had a score of 124. They were C. H. Carroll, C. W. Carver, F. H. Witting, A. G. Huston and D. S. Kerr, H. S. Roberts, A. C. Bromberg and George Adams.

Two foursomes were last with a score of 126. They were C. A. Williams, J. C. Kyle, E. M. Malcolm, B. F. Guy and R. B. Smith, Claude Grizzard, Rufus Brown and R. P. Fraser.

Eighteen teams participated in the mixed foursome play. The winning team had the lowest score recorded yet—132. They were Mrs. H. K. Dewees and Edwin Mugsford. At 134 were Edwin Mugsford and H. P. Dewees. At 143 were Mrs. J. C. Wright and C. W. Lawson. At 149 were Mrs. C. C. Sloan and W. D. Tumlin. At 150 were Miss M. Hogan and T. B. Robertson. Last at 151 were Mrs. J. O. Rhyne and Mr. Emerson.

Mrs. W. D. Tumlin is the medalist in the ladies' club championship tournament with a score of 87. The pairings for this meet are as follows:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT.

Mrs. W. D. Tumlin vs. O. B. Keeler.
Miss Louise Cagle vs. Mrs. I. H. Kelley.

Mrs. B. R. Ward vs. Mrs. R. L. Porter.
Mrs. C. D. Fields vs. Mrs. C. B. Palmer.
Mrs. H. K. Dewees vs. Mrs. Asa Candler.
Mrs. T. B. Robertson vs. Bye.

Players will have until next Sunday night to play two matches.

WEST END BOGEY.

Seventy-six was the winning number Sunday afternoon at West End. No one hit it. Harry Hutenr had a 75.

First place will be carried over until next weekend.

Badminton Courts Are Available Here

Beginning Monday, permits for badminton courts at the old Henry Gray gymnasium will be issued from the city recreation office at 601 city hall, telephone Walnut 4463, Ext. 67.

Through the courtesy of the board of education the gym has been made available to the park department and WPA for badminton and basketball. Permits will be issued for each of the three courts on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 p. m.

Cleveland To Decide Future of Vitt Today

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Directors of the Cleveland Baseball Club will meet tomorrow to decide the future of Oscar Vitt, 1940 manager, and consider a 1941 pilot.

President Alva Bradley, declaring that Vitt still was on the list of possibilities, commented:

"I think in fairness to Oscar that we should make a decision now. That will be the first matter to be considered Monday. I can't say that we will name a new manager at this meeting. We will go into all the possibilities after the Vitt matter is cleared up."

Bradley admitted he had talked with Bucky Harris, Washington pilot, and Luke Sewell, Indian coach, about the job, but refused to name others under consideration.

It is believed Mickey Cochrane, former Detroit manager, and Roger Peckinpaugh, ex-Cleveland manager, are on the list to be submitted to directors.

'Y' Court Meeting Set for Tuesday

All managers of teams expecting to enter teams in the city-WPA sponsored basketball leagues are urged to attend an organization meeting at the Y. M. C. A. conference room Tuesday evening at 7:30 p. m. This meeting will be for men's teams only. The girls' teams' representatives will meet on Tuesday, November 12, to form leagues.

Practice courts are now available at the Henry Grady and Murphy gyms. Permits may be obtained by calling the recreation office, 601 City Hall, telephone Walnut 4463, extension 67.

Duke Ties Yates' Record With a 63

LITHIA SPRINGS, Ga., Oct. 27. (AP)—A foursome composed of Johnny Suggs, Frank Kimball, of Carrollton, Ga., Clement Hunt and Sis Duke played a round here today. Suggs had a 71, Kimball a 67, Hunt a 73 and Duke a 63.

Incidentally, Duke's 63 tied Charlie Yates' record on this course. About 198 spectators witnessed the matches. Louise Suggs shot a 74 during the day.

REDSKINS WIN.

DETROIT, Oct. 27.—(UP)—The Washington Redskins, outplayed in the air by the Detroit Lions, nevertheless sent two men through the line for long touchdown jaunts and their sixth consecutive win, 20-14, in a National Professional Football league game today before 28,909 fans.

BEARS PAW GIANTS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Chicago Bears, as devastating as a fleet of bombing planes, strafed the New York Giants all over the Polo Grounds gridiron today for a 37-to-21 National Pro League victory.

LONG RUN WINS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—(UP)—A twisting 50-yard touchdown run after a pass interception provided the winning margin today for the Chicago Cardinals against the Cleveland Rams in a National professional football game. The score was 17 to 7.

:-ALL IN THE GAME-:

as it hurt Saturday for Wright to be shackled to the sidelines because of an ankle injury. A lot of defense was confined to the Tech bench.

Gain Plenty The Jackets still do a lot of gaining. They had it all over Auburn in that respect Saturday. It must be borne in mind, however, that it hurt Auburn a great deal to lose rampant Rufus Deal after the early touchdown.

How about old Rufe carrying that football under a broken arm? The old determination, what?

Tech had a substantial edge in the statistics. The Jackets led in first downs, 12 to eight; in yards gained from formation, 263 to 242, and in yards gained from passing, 130 to 29.

Fumbles lost by:
Georgia Tech 3
Auburn 0

A couple of fumbles never hurt a team more. In modern football a mistake usually costs a touchdown.

Dynamite The annual Auburn-Georgia game at Columbus packs a lot of dynamite. Deal beat Georgia last year and chances are he won't be able to play Saturday.

Georgia doesn't usually catch Auburn after the Tech game, and this may mean a great deal. Auburn was keyed to beat Tech. And it is hard to key a team two Saturdays in a row.

Auburn, of course, is favored to beat Georgia. The Tigers really are one of the better teams. They have the edge on Georgia in experience and experienced reserves.

They have just as many good backs as Georgia has, and most of them aren't sophomores. Only Yearout, Harkins and Ty Irby are outstanding sophs.

The boys like McGowen, Cheatham, Happer and Wendling have had experience. And with sophs like Irby, Yearout and Harkins to run with them, Auburn is apt to give any team a bad day.

Still, it won't be any runaway for Auburn. Georgia definitely has improved Saturday after Saturday. And Saturday's game at Columbus has all the earmarks of turning into a whale of a game.

Conner Will Post Full-Fact Report

S. E. C. Commissioner 'First Reader' To Contain 'Name, Number and Salary' of Gridders.

By JOHN MARTIN.

Don't be surprised to see the ingenious program hawker who conceived the "name, number, position and salary of each and every player" patter see his idea come true around Southeastern Conference football lots.

Mike Conner, the short-statured and far-sighted commissioner, was talking about his plans yesterday at an informal luncheon given by Coach W. A. Alexander. He was talking freely, both inside the cuff and on the record.

Before the Tennessee Vols get their first bowl bid, Conner likely will come out in print with the records from what kind of fruit S. E. C. players prefer on their cereal and how much tax (if any) they pay on their movie passes. He's compiling the figures on his current swing around the circuit.

The former Governor of Mississippi, who believes that uniformity of rules is the chief need of the league, is expected to crack down on recruiting at the December meeting of the member presidents in Athens.

"I believe this is our biggest worry," he explained.

It would not be surprising to see Conner pull a map containing a restricted area, with nobody being allowed to step over the boundary waving greenbacks as a bait to touring halfbacks with a yen for warm climes.

Should the presidents of the schools, who have a stronger say-so than the commissioner, who is answerable at all times to them, follow the non-recruiting suggestion, there will follow a terrific trade-at-home market.

Conner has visited nine schools and he admitted yesterday that "things look encouraging."

"I have found everybody looking favorably on anything we might do to further stabilize the method of dealing with players. All executives with whom I have conferred appear eager to cooperate, and I see no reason why a lot of good won't come from our efforts."

He told the small group of guests that he would stay in there and pitch "as long as they (the colleges) show willingness to work with me."

The Conner ledger, meantime, is getting thicker. It'll be open to even the cry-babies of the midwest and the criticizing clan in the east before long.

Odds are that the commissioner's first reader will show less football as a business in these parts than you find in certain other sections of the country.

Fullback Deal Believed Lost For Campaign

Auburn Star Must Carry Arm in Sling 6 Weeks, Doctors Say.

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 27.—Rufus Deal, Auburn's 200-pound plunging fullback, may be lost to the Tigers for the remainder of the season as the result of an arm injury received in the opening minute of the game with Georgia Tech in Atlanta yesterday.

Deal's arm was placed in a cast today and attending physicians said it should stay on six weeks. A tendon was pulled loose from his left elbow the first time he carried the ball after Auburn had recovered the fumbled opening kickoff on the Tech 15.

The big fullback said nothing about the injury until he had plunged across for the first score in Auburn's 16-7 victory.

Deal fractured an ankle last summer and it was placed in a cast. He removed it in less than a week and was ready for Auburn's opening game in September.

Henry Monsees, sophomore end from Savannah, Ga., who looked good as a substitute against Tech, was left in an Atlanta hospital with a fractured cheek bone. He may be ready for service by the end of the week, however. No other players were seriously hurt.

PACKERS WIN.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers, held in check for three quarters by a fighting Pittsburgh team, turned on the heat in the closing period to defeat the Steelers, 24 to 3 in a National Professional league football game before 14,000 here today.

Hollywood Helped Beat Tech; Actor Abel Calmed Plainsmen

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Don't tell Tech but Hollywood was working against the Jackets in their game with Auburn last Saturday. Screen Actor Walter Abel had a lot to do with the 16-7 Tiger victory.

It all began Friday night at the hotel where both Abel and Auburn's football team were stopping. The actor was here for the premiere of a certain mystery film now showing at one of the theaters.

The Tiger players wanted to beat Georgia Tech very badly. So much in fact they were having trouble eating and sitting still because of nervousness.

A couple of them happened to walk by Abel's room, looked in and eventually were invited in by the film star. The pair of gridders struck up a conversation and soon many more players were in the room.

Then someone went for Coach Jack Meagher. He, too, joined in the conversation, and after the players retired Jack thanked Abel for what he had done.

GOOD DEED.

The unsuspecting actor didn't understand at first, but pretty soon found out he had taken the boys' minds off the battle, calmed them down so much that they went out and played a whale of a game.

Meagher had been trying, without success, to do just that all day.

Abel was such a good influence on the team Meagher insisted he go to the game with the boys and sit on the Auburn bench. The actor had reservations on a plane, but accepted the invitation.

He had to leave at the half in order to catch his plane even with the help of a police escort. He walked down the sidelines to a waiting car without being recognized by any of the 25,000 people present.

Future Auburn opponents may not regret it so much, but everyone who still loves to see a good old-fashined fullback smack that line withut regard for life or limb is sorry to hear of big Rufus Deal's arm injury.

The husky kid deserves more credit than has been given him. Two plays after he injured his arm he plunged over the line for the first Tiger touchdown. He also carried the ball on the previous play.

One just doesn't plough into a line with a fractured arm unless he's got something under the belt. And big Deal has just that.

He is a hard luck player. With any good luck at all he would be All-Southeastern without a question. He had just recovered from a broken leg at the start of the season, and now he will be out the remainder of the year with his arm.

However, he is just a junior and he'll be back next year to spread woe to Auburn opponents with his bull-like rushes into the line.

I still believe in the Army and Navy system of treating every student alike, and then picking the best you have. They rate at top.

I see no reason why a cr blocking back should be gi any advantage over any oth student who is trying to get a education. If they don't lik football for fun—there is no law I have ever heard about that forces them to play football.

Keep the alumni caged and muzzled—give the coaches a long-term faculty job. I believe in giving all students all the help and all the jobs that are possible. But no favorites. Keep hands off from the prep school kids. Let them make their own decisions, go where they want to go, and forget the proselyters and the well-paid scouts.

CRICHTON'S CONTENDS YOU CAN GET A POSITION

Concentrate On Intelligent Preparation

Interview With Crichton's Head Answers All Doubtful Questions.

In these days of national defense preparation there may be some speculation as to what opportunities there will be in the future for one who wants to enter the business world. This speculation is dissipated beyond a doubt by Miss E. Katherine Reid, president of Crichton's Business College. Miss Reid says:

"If you have made any applications for a position, you have learned that if you are especially trained to do a special type of work there would be a job open for you. Business will always need workers as long as there is any business, but at this time more than ever workers must be qualified for their individual job.

CRICHTON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE—Here is shown the large building on Plaza Way, at South Pryor street, where is located Crichton's Business College. It has been completely decorated throughout and new equipment added.

Therefore, proceed intelligently to get ready for a position, then you'll get that position. If you want to study medicine, you go to a medical school, if you want to study law, you go to a law school, if you want to learn the skills that will qualify you for a position in business, go to a business school.

Where You Can Prepare.

"You can prepare yourself to write shorthand, operate the typewriter, run business machines, keep books, take machine dictation, or write business letters by taking a business course at Crichton's Business College. This is the shortest, quickest, most satisfactory way to attain your business education.

"If you are ambitious, if you have a fairly good personality, if you are willing to learn, if you have a knack of co-operating with other people, if you have average intelligence, there is no reason in the world why there should not be for you a desired position in business. Frankly, I would advise one to worry first about getting ready for a position, because manifestly there will be no position ready for you until you are ready for it. Not only in private business, but in government work, the demands are for the skilled operator. Therefore, concentrate on being that skilled operator that is in demand now.

"A small amount of money invested at this time in a business course at Crichton's to acquire the knowledge and skill required to fill a position will bring you dividends of pleasure and profit as long as you live. Your principal will be invested in a business you control. It will be where you can watch it. Naturally you want to get full value for your time and money invested in a business education. That is one privilege you will enjoy at Crichton's—the privilege of doing the very best you can for yourself, with the help of expert instructors, good surroundings, and the incentive of an inspirational atmosphere.

Help You to Get a Job.

"You will also have the advantage of a highly organized placement bureau, which keeps in close touch with the leading business employers, helping finished students to obtain that so much desired position, and during the 55 years of successful operation of Crichton's Business College in Atlanta there have been more positions offered to finished students in the past few months than ever before in the history of this school.

"Students may enroll at any time, thereby saving time and money, and complete information will be given anyone without obligation at the office of Crichton's Business College, Plaza way and Pryor street, or by phoning Walnut 9341. Remember, you can get a position if you will get ready to hold a position."

Mayo-Stephens Welding Firm Can Serve You

Smokestacks, Galvanized Tanks, Etc., Mended by This Concern.

Mayo & Stephens Welding company, a firm of welding engineers well known over this entire section for the dependability of their work, just now in the midst of a busy season. In fact, any time of the year is a busy season for this concern. Its work is so well known, its reliability so well rated, that the expert workmen engaged by the company, to say nothing of the long experience of the heads of the concern, that it has little time for idleness at any time.

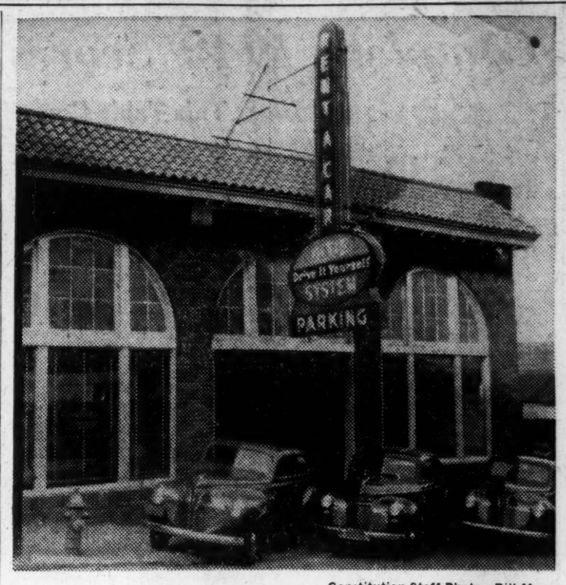

J. M. Mayo, owner and manager, has been in the welding business for 26 years, starting with the Southern railway, working as boilermaker and welder in 1914.

The company has the very latest equipment—modern machinery for handling any jobs in its line. It will answer calls for work—go anywhere, any time—and maintains a portable welder for outside work. This portable welder has all the accessories for welding. It will go to the job, if the job cannot conveniently come to the shop.

In many apartments, in large industrial plants, where large galvanized tanks are used, it would certainly be easier to repair them—to weld broken or leaky places—now than later in the season, so if there is any work of this kind, call this concern now.

That is the type of work for which the Mayo & Stephens Welding company are especially fitted. In addition to paying attention to your hot water tanks, wouldn't now be a good time to have needed work done on that smokestack? If so, call Mayo & Stephens Welding company. They are located at 454 Marietta street.

The company is not only welding engineers, but that title embraces a complete list of workmanship it is enabled to turn out. Among these is the building and repairing of boilers, tanks, structural steel, bottling bodies, dump bodies, castings, welding auto cracked blocks, and the like.

ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION—Here is the headquaters of the Dixie Drive-It-Yourself System, 26 Ellis Street, N. E., where Fords, Chevrolets and Plymouth cars and efficient trucks can be rented for economical transportation.

Dixie System Gives Complete Rental Service

'Drive-It-Yourself' Proving Efficient and Economical to Many.

If a business man needs a car to call on his customers; if an Atlantan wants a car for a short pleasure jaunt, a vacation or football trip; if a business firm needs an extra truck during a peak period, if a firm desires to lease a fleet of trucks rather than operate their own machines—there's an easy answer to all such needs.

Any and all of these services can be obtained at the Dixie Drive-It-Yourself System, 26 Ellis street, N. E., according to Thomas P. Garden, manager.

Here one will find 1941 model Fords, Chevrolets and Plymouth cars.

Truck users will find new efficient trucks of all sizes, and all available at low rental rates.

It is through the means of such equipment that efficient, economical transportation is provided.

"Our low rental rates are popular with Atlantans who use rental cars for vacation trips or weekend trips," says Mr. Garden. "Often the cost is less than rail fares and the rental car customer is free to go and come as he pleases without having to map his schedule from a time table, and has a means of making side trips."

The passenger car rental location is at 26 Ellis street, N. E., where Felton E. Dorris, assistant manager, is in charge. Telephone WAlnut 1870.

"More and more business firms are finding it economical to own only the number of trucks needed daily," continued Mr. Garden, "and when extra trucks are needed, they can rent one from Dixie. Instead of carrying one or more extra trucks to use only during peak seasonal periods, or to replace a unit temporarily out of service, they let Dixie carry their extra units.

"The leasing service includes each and every item of truck operation expense with the exception of the driver, who remains on the customer's pay roll to represent him and his firm."

Dixie's truck garage, containing more than 20,000 square feet of storage space, is located at 74 Courtland street, N. E. Telephone MAin 0371.

'June Preston' Dresses Shown by H. Mendel & Co.

Merchants Are Featuring Line for Holiday Promotions.

The famous and nationally known "June Preston" girls' dresses, styled by Loomcraft, are now being distributed by H. Mendel & Company, wholesale distributors on South Pryor street, who report extensive bookings on this line by merchants thruout the South who are getting ready for a big holiday dress season.

The "June Preston" line is outstanding for its sparkling, new styles for gift promotions, featuring "Pennies from Heaven" frocks—dresses with matching stuffed animals—a grand array of party dresses and housecoats. For babies' first Christmas, Loomcraft features in its "June Preston" line the smart "Baby Loomcraft" frocks for 6, 9 and 12 month-ers.

Merchants are invited to come in and see the "June Preston" dresses and line up with this fastest selling brand of girls frocks, starting with infants and right on up to the young sophisticates. Large stocks of all size ranges are carried on the floor ready for immediate shipment out of Atlanta.

H. Mendel & Company, Inc., has been engaged in the wholesale distribution of dry goods, notions, furnishings, ladies' ready-to-wear, novelty accessories, men's and boys' clothing, and such like merchandise since 1891, and has established a reputation among buyers for retail concerns second to none in the southeast.

WHERE EXPERTS SERVE CAR OWNERS—The home of Max Auto Parts Company, 531 Marietta street, where mechanics are busy rebuilding differentials, transmissions and motors for any late model car or truck.

'We Tear 'Em Up And Sell the Parts'

—Says Greenberg

Max Greenberg

Rebuilding differentials, transmissions and motors for any late model of cars and trucks is one of the main features just now of Max Auto Parts Company at 531 Marietta street.

This concern is one of the most widely known concerns of its kind in this entire section. Owned and managed by Max Greenberg, himself an expert in his line, his place is one of the busy places of Atlanta.

For a long number of years Mr. Greenberg was engaged in a similar business in Birmingham. Seven years ago he came to Atlanta and, by surrounding himself with only experienced mechanics, he has in this time built up a large and growing business. His customers here are among the largest and leading auto houses and dealers, concerns that operate fleets of cars and trucks and individual users of motor cars.

Every piece of assembly sold to a customer in his rebuilding work is absolutely guaranteed. If it does not hold up to the guarantee made, another is installed without question—and without charge.

Mr. Greenberg also is a large purchaser of insurance salvage. As cars and trucks are secured thereby, they are dismantled, and every part of the operating machinery of the car or truck is carefully examined and put into as perfect condition as it is possible before it is offered for sale.

"We tear 'em up and sell the parts," expresses in a very timely slogan just the very thing that Max Auto Parts Company is doing from day to day and month to month at its well-equipped plant on Marietta street.

Devastation In Berlin Wide, British Claim

Nazis Prevent Truth of Damage Leaking Out, London Says.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The British air ministry tonight painted a picture of widespread damage in Berlin—in some instances approaching scenes of devastation in key armament factories—in a lengthy report of Royal Air Force operations over the Reich's capital since the beginning of September.

The ministry based part of its report on "reliable neutral sources." Among them, it cited an American oil chemist who recently returned home because the German firm for which he worked 14 years had had all its 12 scattered plants bombed out of existence by Royal Air Force marksmen.

Nazis Hide Damage.

The British claimed that damage in Berlin is much greater than the Nazis admit. They pointed to reports of efforts of Berlin police to keep curious persons from viewing the damage.

"In the words of one informant," the report said, "gangs are put to work almost as soon as the bombs have been dropped and they do their utmost to effect repairs before daylight. In many instances the few hours of darkness left do not give workmen enough time to do the job thoroughly and consequently streets and sometimes whole areas are roped off so as to prevent the truth from leaking out.'"

Residents of the Charlottenberg area of Berlin, the British reported, recently went without gas for days because of well directed hits on gas works there.

Berlin Raids Continue.

Earlier the ministry and its news service said that British bombers flying through thick clouds dumped the heaviest caliber bombs yet carried to Berlin upon the German capital last night and other planes attacked at least a dozen targets in Germany and German-dominated countries.

The news service told of a large fire started in the Brandenburg airplane engine factory in the Spandau suburb of Berlin; a heavy assault on the Moabit power station, one of Berlin's main sources of electric supply; and salvos of high explosives falling on the Putlitzstrasse and Lehrter railroad yards near Berlin's center.

The news service quoted returning raiders as saying they could see vivid white flashes at the blazing airplane engine works as they roared homeward.

(The German high command admitted that "one enemy plane" bombed Berlin but said that "as in other large cities damage was caused only to dwellings.")

Jewelers Discuss Regional Meeting

Atlanta jewelers yesterday began planning for entertaining approximately 1,000 jewelers who will be in Atlanta next spring for the regional meeting of the American National Retail Jewelers Association.

Alvin Magnon, of Tampa, regional vice president of the association, met with local jewelers and discussed plans for the forthcoming convention.

The regional meet will bring together jewelers of nine southeastern states.

ARMY in Georgia

FORT BENNING, Ga., Oct. 27. (AP)—New construction completed or under way at this Army post in the 15-month period ending October 3 totaled $5,591,069.

Colonel James R. Alfont, post quartermaster, in charge of all building activities, in announcing the figures said also that $3,091,000 worth of building projects for the reservation had War Department approval, but had not been started.

Many of the new buildings are of wood construction, cantonment type, to shelter new or expanding troop organizations. Buildings of permanent character included three for the motor section of the Infantry School. These are of concrete and steel and cost slightly more than $100,000.

Projects under way but unfinished include one for housing the 22d Infantry, Fourth Division. The largest of uncompleted projects is a building to house the Second Armored Division. One building approved but not yet started will provide the post with a 1,435-bed hospital.

Metropolitan Opera Star Honored at Party Here

Mme. Kirsten Thorberg, Metropolitan Opera star, who will sing here in concert tomorrow night, was the guest of honor at a supper party last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hecht on Peachtree Battle avenue.

Approximately 90 music-loving Atlantans were on hand to honor the famous Swedish contralto.

Mercury Soars Here In October Heat Wave

Indian summer it might be, but to the mercury in the weatherman's thermometer and to sweltering Atlantans, yesterday was August in October.

The mercury climbed to 86 degrees—27 degrees above the normal mean for October 27 in Atlanta—before the heat master called a halt. Even the low reading for yesterday was two degrees above the day's normal mean temperature of 59 degrees.

System To Aid Defense Work Is Established

Plan Designed To Facilitate Interstate Movement of Workers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A system designed to facilitate the interstate movement of workers in defense industries was put into operation today by the United States Employment Service of the Social Security Board.

To carry on the work the board established 13 regional clearance offices in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago, Birmingham, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Austin, Texas, San Francisco, Seattle and Denver.

These offices will be control points for interstate clearance of orders for workers in aircraft, tank construction, arms and ammunition manufacture and other defense activities. The regional offices will not accept applications from job seekers or carry out placements. These activities and the interstate clearance of non-defense workers will continue to be in the hands of state services.

Man Here Is Shot In Leg by Officer

Paul Juhan, 31, of a Delmar street address, was shot in the leg Saturday night when he and two companions refused to stop for questioning at the command of police, Patrolmen C. R. Henslee and J. E. Patterson reported yesterday.

Juhan was treated for a flesh wound at Grady hospital and then taken to the city jail, where he was charged with suspicion for investigation. His companions, listed as Paul Nichols, of a Memorial drive address, and Walter Folds, of Delmar street, were booked on the same charge.

The patrolmen said Juhan was shot after they attempted unsuccessfully to stop the trio and question them. In their report, the officers said Juhan turned upon them in threatening manner and Officer Henslee fired one time toward the ground, but the bullet struck Juhan in the lower part of the leg.

470,000 Men Most Greece Could Muster

Air Force Has Only 120 Planes; Navy Includes 10 Destroyers.

Greece is a kingdom of 50,257 square miles and the population in 1938 was 7,196,900.

Military service is compulsory between the ages of 21 and 50.

Early last summer the standing army was 70,000 men, and it was estimated that about 400,000 could be mustered by calling in all reservists. Whether all these can be equipped with modern arms is a question.

There are five army corps, each of three divisions. These are:

First Army—Athens, commanded by General John Potsikas.

Second Army—Larissa, General Dimitri Papasoupoulos.

Third Army—Salonika, General Tsolakoglou.

Fourth Army—Cavalla, General George Kosmos.

Fifth Army — Alexandoupolis, General Constantin Bakapoulos.

The air force consists of 10 groups of three flights each, each flight having four aircraft.

The Grecian navy has 10 destroyers, 13 torpedo boats, eight minelayers, six submarines and a variety of miscellaneous craft.

Greece Is Invaded; Troops Mobilized

jected the Italian demands and ordered mobilization.

Greece has virtually no army and without powerful aid would be overrun by Italy within a few days since Italy reportedly has more than 200,000 troops poised in Albania.

Great Britain, however, has a powerful fleet in the eastern Mediterranean and is pledged to protect Greek independence and territorial integrity.

The big port of Salonika—often called the "key to the Balkans"—undoubtedly will be the first objective of Italian forces, striving to seize and fortify it before it can be occupied by the British navy. Thus it appeared that Greece—whether the Italians or British reach Salonika first—promptly will become a battleground upon which Italy and Britain will clash.

In an effort to avert open warfare between Greece and Italy, Premier Metaxas had dispatched a "peace mission" to the Albanian frontier where Greek troops are alleged to have attacked Italian military posts with rifle-fire and grenades.

Greek and Italian officials met at the frontier, an official communique said, but no immediate settlement was achieved and Greek officers asked for another conference.

The request was made because the Italians were represented only by a second lieutenant instead of the Italian commander of the border trouble-spot.

The Greek mission, headed by a high military official, left Athens after the Metaxas government in an official communique flatly denied the alleged attacks and implied that the fighting was between Italian forces and rebellious Albanians.

(The Italian radio, describing the meeting at the frontier, said that the Greek air force was in "a state of high alarm").

Sought Peace.

The Athens government worked against time in seeking a peaceful settlement of the new high-mark in Italo-Greek tension as reports reached here of heavy concentrations of Italian armed forces along the border and of impending Fascist "reprisal" action.

Premier Metaxas early yesterday received an ungent telephone call from Rome, and for seven hours afterward telephone connections between Athens and the Italian capital were down. The only explanation was that they were "out of order."

The Greeks officially disclaimed any knowledge of Italy's allegations of a bombing attack on an Italian lieutenant General's office at Porto Edda, an Albanian town also known as Santa Quaranto which is opposite Corfu and just over the Greek border.

The Italians described the bombing as the work of British secret agents who had drawn the Greeks into their "intrigues."

Japanese Planes Bomb Burma Road Terminal

KUNMING, China, Oct. 27.—(AP) Japanese warplanes hammered the airdrome at Kunming, terminal of the Burma road, again today, causing unestimated damage. The city was under alarm half the day.

The Chinese Central News Agency in Hongkong said 20,000 Chinese recruits have been trained in east Hainan for the purpose of harassing Japanese forces there, and added that a small arsenal had been established to manufacture ammunition.

have gotten themselves in for a fight when they attacked Greece. Greece has only 9,000,000 people. With airplanes, Italy will probably defeat Greece, but not until great numbers of Italians are killed."

Hanjaras pulled out a worn map of Greece and the Mediterranean area. He drew pencil marks to illustrate.

"Italy won't be able to land an army in Greece. We are afraid they will come down through Yugoslavia. We are as well-fortified there as we are on the Albanian border. Yugoslavia probably is in no position to fight."

"But regardless of natural land and water barriers, the air is all Italian until Britain and Turkey can get airplanes to Greece, my homeland will be almost at the mercy of the Italian air force.

Hanjaras has two brothers and three sisters in Greece, and about 15 nephews and nieces. Three of the nephews are in the army.

Atlanta Man Finds Dog Taking Nap in Auto

The strange passenger found in the automobile of T. H. Barnett, 1454 Emory road, early yesterday, is now at police headquarters awaiting identification by his owner.

Barnett told police officials he parked his car near the corner of Virginia avenue and Lanier boulevard yesterday, and when he returned he found a bird dog curled up on the back seat, taking a nap.

1,000 U. S. Residents In China To Leave Soon

SHANGHAI, Oct. 27.—(AP)—United States authorities estimated tonight that 1,000 American residents in China, mostly women and children, will leave Shanghai for home on the steamer Monterey November 3 in conformance with a State Department warning to quit the Far East.

The steamer will be the first of three emergency ships sent to the Orient. The Mariposa is due here November 15 and the Washington on November 19.

Hitler's Paper Links Bullitt In New 'Expose'

Foreign Policy of U. S. Assailed; 'Documents' Produced.

BERLIN (Monday), Oct. 28.—(UP)—Adolf Hitler's Nazi party organ, Woelkischer Beobachter, today launched a bitter attack on United States foreign policy and produced new "documents" purporting to show that United States Ambassador to France William C. Bullitt favored American entry into the war.

Bullitt, archfoe of the Nazis, was assailed for the second time in recent months with the publication of what the Volekischer Beobachter called documentary evidence seized by the Germans in Poland.

The new published "document" involving Bullitt was said to cover five typewritten pages, sent from Count Jerzey Potocki, Polish ambassador in Washington, to the Warsaw foreign office on March 7, 1939, before the outbreak of the war.

This evidence, the Nazi party newspaper said, analyzed American foreign policy and the possibilities of United States participation in the war.

The Voelkischer Beobachter was bitter in challenging Bullit's statements in a speech at Chicago on October 21 in which he branded as "a Nazi lie" assertions that he and other American diplomats had promised Britain and France that the United States would enter the war.

Germany has "no intention of mixing in the American presidential election," the Voelkischer Beobachter said, then added:

"But we cannot remain silent when an American diplomat, who, in Europe as well as in his own land, is known as an unscrupulous warmonger against our country, twists the truth in such a manner."

Bullitt in his Chicago speech accused "Nazi propagandists in Berlin of launching the lie that we had promised France and England that we would enter the war."

The Nazi newspaper took sharp issue with Bullitt's disclosure, in his Chicago speech, of a letter which he said Edouard Daladier, then French premier, had sent to President Roosevelt on October 4, 1940. That letter, Bullitt said, contained Daladier's statement that "France should make her deci-

278 Are Saved As Steamship Strikes Shore

Seattle - Bound Vessel Crashes Full Speed in Pitch Blackness.

PRINCE RUPERT, B. C., Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press)—Half-dressed and shivering from a night of exposure, 278 passengers of the grounded coastal liner Alaska were landed safely from a rescue ship here tonight. The big Seattle-bound ship crashed on the rocky shore of Elliott Bay early this morning.

Wreck victims were brought to this small Hecate Strait port by the Northland Steamship Company liner North Coast, which, like the Alaska, was en route from Ketchikan, Alaska, to Seattle.

The Alaska struck at full speed in the pitch blackness of a northern autumn night and shoved her bow almost into the trees fringing the shore 20 miles south of here. The ship immediately listed to port, and Captain O. C. Anderson ordered passengers ashore for fear the vessel might slide into deep water.

Tumbling from their bunks or rushing from the salon, the passengers jumped for lifeboats while oil from the Alaska's tanks spread over the water. Several fell into the icy water, and most were smeared with oil, but no one was injured seriously.

The North Coast, answering an SOS, arrived five hours later. The passengers, who had been sitting around campfires singing through the night, were rowed 300 yards to the rescue ship.

The Alaska Steamship Company, owner of the $1,000,000 wrecked Alaska, announced that the steamer Yukon would arrive here at midnight to return the passengers to Ketchikan, where arrangements will be made for continuing their trip to Seattle. Meanwhile, unable to find beds, the passengers slept huddled in hotel lobbies, on stairways and on floors. Many still lacked proper clothing.

Laborite Flays Halifax For Attitude on Russia

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Laborite Emanuel Shinwell directed heavy fire at Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax today in an address in which he said "There is every indication Russia is anxious for a friendly understanding with us, but so long as Lord Halifax is at the foreign office there is little hope of such understanding."

He charged that the foreign office had been "too stiffnecked, too obstinate and too stubborn" toward Russia.

Record Crowd Visits N. Y. Fair On Closing Day

Throng Pours Through Gates at More Than 1,000 a Minute.

WORLD'S FAIR, New York, Oct. 27.—(UP)—The New York World's Fair of 1939 and 1940, a gaudy and colossal flop financially, but a great show while it lasted, stripped down to the last midway cutie's last G-string tonight, sounded quavering taps to a world of tomorrow it had bravely tried to lead toward peace and freedom and expired, full of debts and disappointment.

To the last rites came hundreds of thousands of happy mourners, gay as Halloween ghosts, pouring through the gates at the rate of more than 1,000 a minute, for a last quick look at the Perisphere and Trylon, mystical symbols of man's eternal hopefulness and to swipe a building or two for souvenirs if the police would permit.

Attendance was the highest for any day of either 1939 or 1940. By 6:35 p. m., 493,100 persons had entered on paid tickets. The largest previous total for a single day was 492,446 on September 3, 1939, the Sunday before Labor Day.

The exhibit area was to close at midnight, but the amusement area planned a 2 a. m. finale in the gala manner with the wraps off. With that over, demolition battalions were on the alert to tear down what man and Grover A. Whalen had wrought, leaving only five permanent buildings to stand in what will be a huge city park, half as big as Central park.

Lewis Called 'Lost Leader' By CIO Official

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Emil Rieve, vice president of the CIO, in a radio reply today to the indorsement of Wendell L. Willkie by John L. Lewis, CIO president, characterized Lewis as "a tragic lost leader" returning to "the outmoded philosophy of the Republican party."

Rieve, who also is president of the Textile Workers Union of America, said the textile workers' indorsement of Mr. Roosevelt was arrived at through Democratic procedure and "still stands."

"Even as a unauthorized individual, Mr. Lewis was not expressing the known preference of the majority of CIO members," Rieve asserted. "He was, instead, making the last desperate stand of a leader whose followers, on this issue at least, have deserted him."

"Our efforts shall be redoubled in behalf of the President and the New Deal," he declared.

Rieve said Lewis' "indictment of President Roosevelt was empty of real facts, charges or conviction. His indorsement of Willkie was hollow and strained."

MINE WORKERS ASK RESIGNATION

BECKLEY, W. Va., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Demands for the resignation of John L. Lewis as president of the United Mine Workers came from some union locals in the vast winding Gulf coal fields today as an aftermath of Lewis' indorsement of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee.

Several of the union locals also telegraphed President Roosevelt pledging "unanimous support."

Among the letters to Lewis was this one from Local Union 2325 at Stanaford:

"We ask you to resign as president of the United Mine Workers for the benefit of the organization. When you attacked President Roosevelt in your speech October 25 you attacked labor's best friend. We believe the sooner we eliminate men from our ranks the type of you, the better for the United Mine Workers of America."

TEXTILE GROUP CONDEMNS LEWIS

RUTLAND, Vt., Oct. 27.—(AP)—The organization council of New Hampshire and Vermont for the Textile Workers' Union of North America, CIO affiliate, went on record at a meeting here today as condemning John L. Lewis, CIO president, for his speech favoring the election of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, and demanded Lewis' resignation, according to Henry L. Jennings, of Manchester, N. H., chairman of the council.

LEWIS STAND CALLED AID TO ROOSEVELT

WATERVILLE, Me., Oct. 27.—(AP)—F. Harold DuBord, Democratic national committeeman from Maine, declared today that "nothing that has occurred during the campaign will bring Roosevelt more votes than CIO Leader John L. Lewis' indorsement of Wendell Willkie."

In an address prepared for delivery at the annual convention of the Young Democrats of Maine, Dubord asserted "the men and women who make up the ranks of labor will repudiate this false leader, and, thousands of independent voters throughout the country will support President Roosevelt because John L. Lewis is against him."

JACKSON QUITS NON-PARTISAN GROUP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Gardner Jackson resigned tonight as legislative representative of labor's non-parisan league because of "complete disagreement" with Chairman John L. Lewis' indorsement of Wendell Willkie for president.

Jackson, a Washington attorney, wrote Lewis that his action would "be a serious blow to the progressive labor movement" and would destroy Lewis' "personal influence as leader."

MARITIME UNION OFFICERS BACK LEWIS

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Three officers and three organizers of the National Maritime union (CIO) wired John L. Lewis tonight their support of his criticism of the Roosevelt administration, which they added "has no right to expect the support of laboring millions whom it has consistently betrayed."

The telegram was signed by National President Joseph Curran, Secretary Ferdinand C. Smith, Treasurer Hedley M. Stone, and Organizers Frederick N. Myers, Jack Laurenson and Howard McKenzie.

"Our own organization has suffered greatly at their (the administration's) hands," the telegram said. "Unemployment insurance for seamen though glibly promised has been pigeonholed. Ships have been transferred to foreign flags casting thousands of American seamen on shore with little or no relief. The administration has consistently refused to uphold the labor laws . . ."

The union claims approximately 50,000 members.

U. S. Housing Bogged Down, Willkie Says

Faulty Administration of Program Is Charged by Candidate.

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN EN ROUTE TO RENSSELAER, Ind., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie contended today that "the New Deal housing program has bogged down" because of faulty administration and failure to admit the real extent of slum clearance subsidies.

In a statement issued from his special train, the Republican presidential nominee declared that 13 government building agencies now "compete with and even fight each other, to the detriment of housing as a whole."

Traveling to the home district of Representative Charles A. Halleck, one of his close advisors, Willkie drafted his statement after his physician, Dr. H. D. Barnard, suggested that he abandon plans to attend church in Mingo Junction, Ohio, a steel mill town.

Condition of Homes.

The nominee was troubled by a slight cold.

In his statement, Willkie said that in his travels he had been "deeply impressed with the dilapidated appearance of the homes of millions of our people."

Adding that it "is absolutely essential to remedy those conditions," Willkie continued:

"It is widely recognized, however, that the New Deal housing program has bogged down. This has been due to a lack of frankness on the part of the New Deal in failing to admit the real extent of federal slum clearance subsidies. It has been also due to faulty administration. Today 13 different uncorrelated agencies —FWA, USHA, FHA, FSA, HOLC, HOLB, CHC, DHC, NRBB, PBA, RFC Mortgage, PWA, and the building departments of the army and navy procurement divisions —compete with and even fight each other to the detriment of housing as a whole."

Urges Correlation.

1. Stimulation of slum clearance, land use planning and housing are government functions which should "always supplement and stimulate private enterprise and initiative rather than encroach upon it."

2. Federal housing agencies should be correlated.

3. Agencies such as FHA, HOLC, USHA and FSA should be maintained, "but their administration must be improved."

4. Federal co-operation with local authorities and private enterprise in neighborhood planning.

5. Clear definition of respective responsibilities of federal, state and local governments in any housing program.

6. Removal of "maladjustments holding back housing recovery, such as high costs, politically exploited building codes and excessive real estate taxes."

The nominee scheduled a half-dozen addresses for tomorrow, starting at 9:30 a. m. at Bloomington, Ill.

He will appear in Champaign and Danville, Ill.; Indianapolis and Columbus, Ind., and Louisville, Ky. The Louisville speech will be broadcast nationally (CBS) between 9:30 and 10 p. m.

Youths Stone Car, Picnickers Allege

Arrested Saturday night after some youths had pelted an automobile with stones at the foot of Stone mountain, T. A. Plunkett, 18, and C. R. Pickens, 19, both giving Redan addresses, were released yesterday from the DeKalb county jail after posting bonds of $100 each.

Young Plunkett was charged with malicious mischief, while Pickens was lodged in the jail on charges of carrying concealed weapons.

DeKalb Patrolmen Hill and Austin reported that Mr. and Mrs. Ellis McGraw, 724 Spring street; Mr. and Mrs. Emmett McGraw and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Stevens, of Atlanta, were threatened by a large crowd of boys who came up while they were roasting wieners. The picnickers told the officers that the boys threw rocks at them and forced them to flee in their automobile.

A car window was broken when a stone thrown at them struck the automobile, the picnickers told the police.

Lewis May Get F.D.R. Reply in Speech Today

President Will Make Major Political Address in New York.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt will motor through many miles of northern New Jersey and metropolitan New York tomorrow on his way to Madison Square Garden for a major political speech.

Before leaving the capital by special train on the first leg of his journey, the chief executive worked in the seclusion of the White House on the speeches which he will deliver in New York, Boston, Brooklyn, Cleveland and elsewhere during thefinal intensive phase of his re-election campaign.

The Democratic national committee has retained NBC's red and blue networks from 9 to 10 p. m. (Atlanta time) tomorrow night for the Madison Square Garden address. It will give the President his first platform opportunity to reply to John L. Lewis, the CIO chieftain who came out last week for Wendell Willkie, but whether he intends to discuss labor matters has not been disclosed.

To Greet Mayors.

Mr. Roosevelt will leave his train tomorrow morning at Newark, N. J., where he will greet the mayors of northern New Jersey municipalities.

Motoring to near-by Kearney, N. J., the President will visit the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, which is building seven cruisers and 32 destroyers for the Navy.

The route of his motorcade goes then through Bayonne, N. J., to Staten Island and Brooklyn, where he will participate in groundbreaking ceremonies for the tunnel which is to link Brooklyn with Manhattan Island at the Battery at a cost estimated near $80,000,000.

After lunch at Hunter College with some faculty members of New York colleges, Mr. Roosevelt will motor to Manhattan.

Will Go to Fordham.

During the afternoon he will see the Queens bridge housing development and make a brief visit to LaGuardia air field. Passing over the Triborough bridge, he will go to Fordham University, where he is expected to deliver a short speech before a unit of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

The schedule then calls for the President's return to his train at the Mott Haven yards for dinner. Later he will motor to Madison Square Garden for his address and, following it, board his train for Washington.

Mr. Roosevelt will speak Tuesday in Washington at the lottery determining the order in which selective service registrants will be called to the colors, and then he will leave the capital again for an address Wednesday night in Boston.

CUDAHY CHARGES FEAR CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—John Cudahy, ambassador to Belgium, charged Republicans today with waging a "fear campaign" in an attempt to elect Wendell L. Willkie President.

In an address to more than 250 members of the Women's National Democratic Club, Cudahy said he was convinced from his experiences abroad, where he witnessed the invasion of Belgium, Holland and France, that "this is no time for a change of administrations."

WALLACE BACK IN MIDDLE WEST

ABOARD WALLACE SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO ATLANTIC, Iowa, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Henry Wallace, Democratic vice-presidential candidate, returned to the middle west tonight to start the final week of his campaign in his home state of Iowa.

Starting tomorrow at Atlantic, he will make a two-day automobile tour of Iowa, with a side trip to Omaha, Neb., tomorrow night for a major radio address in a renewed bid for the mid-western farm support.

Wallace canceled a tentatively scheduled tour of New England this week to return to the section which appeared to be a chief battleground of the campaign—Iowa, Nebraska, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

His itinerary Monday will include morning stops at Atlantic, Audubon, Carroll, Sac City and Holstein. Afternoon addresses are scheduled for Ida Grove, Denison, Harlan, Oakland and Council Bluffs.

Returning to Iowa from the speech in Omaha, he will make addresses Tuesday at Sioux City, Lemars, Rock Rapids, Sibley, Sheldon, Spencer, Emmetsburg, Algona, Fort Dodge and Ames.

He will break his mid-western tour to return to New York for an address Thursday night in Madison Square Garden. He will tour Ohio Friday, Pennsylvania Saturday, and conclude his campaign Saturday night in Wilmington, Delaware.

F. D. R. Confers With Kennedy For Four Hours

Ambassador Announces He Will Make Press Statement Today.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy conferred for nearly four hours with President Roosevelt tonight immediately following his return from London and announced that he would issue a statement to the press in New York tomorrow at noon.

Kennedy gave no hint as to what the statement would contain and declined to comment on his discussion with the President. Mrs. Kennedy accompanied him to the White House and Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, and Mrs. Byrnes also were there.

The conference lasted until time for the President to leave for his train to New York, where he delivers a major political address at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Speeds to Meeting.

Kennedy said he had considered accompanying the President on his train but finally decided to fly back to New York.

In response to questions, he said he would not be at Madison Square Garden for the speech and that he did not know whether he would be with the President when Mr. Roosevelt speaks in Boston.

Kennedy came direct to Washington following his arrival in New York from Lisbon by clipper early in the afternoon. A White House car sped him from the airport to his meeting with the President, another car took him back to the airport as soon as the conference was concluded and he took a plane to New York at 10:35 p. m.

Resignation Sumors.

Reporters did not learn that Byrnes had been at the White House until after the senator left and he could not be reached for comment. Byrnes not only is one of the President's chief lieutenants in the senate but also is a leading political advisor.

Kennedy called for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election in view of disturbed conditions while home on Christmas leave last December. Asked at New York today whether he was "still for a third term," Kennedy replied, "You know what I said a year ago."

Rumors have been current that Kennedy wanted to resign his post, but Secretary Hull said last week that the ambassador's return was merely for "consultation" and that he knew of no plans to resign.

as virtually tantamount to a special convention.

"It was with deep regret," an UAW telegram sent to Mr. Roosevelt said, "that we heard the speech of John L. Lewis in support of Willkie and we want to inform you that Mr. Lewis did not speak for the membership of our great union."

"Keen Disapproval"

A resolution was adopted citing the union's convention indorsement of President Roosevelt and expressing "keen disappointment and disapproval" of Lewis' stand for Willkie. It said that Willkie had been indorsed by "Henry Ford, Tom Girdler and other arch enemies of labor."

"We are going to have a union, no matter who is elected," Thomas said in a speech.

The union president, urging locals to hold their organizations strong, advised all officers to "go back and work harder than ever for the re-election of Roosevelt."

Of Lewis' decision Thomas said: "I don't believe he has the support of the leading labor leaders in the country in his vote.

Boos arose when Leo Lamotte, executive board member, said that "Lewis never knowingly did anything to harm the workers of the nation." Lamotte has defended Lewis in the Willkie indorsement.

"I want to defend Lewis, regardless of his position," Lamotte said. "If we lose him as president, we are losing the greatest labor leader in history."

The telegram to Mr. Roosevelt further said:

"We have today resolved to intensify our every effort between now and election day to keep you in the White House and Mr. Willkie in the house of Morgan.

"In this fight we stand solidly behind you against the Willkies, Fords, Weirs and Girdlers at home and against the aggressors Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini abroad."

istered and sought to kindle in them a spirit of revolt against doing their part for the defense of this country, he reached the low point, and one for which Republicans, Democrats, Willkiecrats, Independent Republicans, Independent Democrats, Progressives and any other group which professes to approve of our way of life and our democratic institutions should condemn him.

Willkie Stand Cited.

"All of this he did despite the fact that the Republican party and Wendell Willkie, its candidate for the Presidency of the United States, had approved them. Willkie approved registration and conscription before President Roosevelt publicly approved them.

"If the objectives sought in his address of creating disloyalty, disunity and race hatred are accomplished, how then could the Republican party with Wendell Willkie as President defend this country and our way of life?

"John L. Lewis is an intelligent man, and I believe he did this deliberately. The Republican party and Wendell Willkie, its candidate for the presidency, were duped into making available at their expense the facilities of radio in America for his subversive address. However, unless they condemn him for his act, they must assume their share of the responsibility for the effect that his address may have.

"The only persons who have any cause for rejoicing over his address are Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin, who have spent vast sums of money in this country to advocate those things in toto."

Willkie Pledge Laughable, Aid To USHA Says

McDonald Attacks Promise To Stimulate Slum Clearance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP) Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator, said tonight that "Candidate Willkie's promise to stimulate slum clearance is laughable in the light of the consistent and almost solid Republican voting record in congress against all efforts by the government to improve housing conditions."

"When the Wagner-Steagall bill was passed by congress in 1937 setting up the United States Housing Authority," McDonald said in a statement, "most of the Republicans in both the house and senate voted against it. In the house the Republican vote was two to one against it.

"Last year when an attempt was made to provide additional funds for the USHA, senate Republicans voted 14 to 2 in favor of cutting down the amount from $800,000,000 to $400,000,000 and then in the house the Republicans succeeded in killing the bill with a vote of 137 to 8 against considering it.

"Largely because of Republican opposition in congress, the USHA has had to suspend its building activities.

"This promise of Mr. Willkie today, like so many others he has been making, is pure political bunk in view of the record."

Wilcox Farmers Plant 333,300 Pine Seedlings

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROCHELLE, Ga., Oct. 28.—Local farmers have begun to place orders for pine seedlings to be planted this winter. During the past year there were 333,300 trees planted on 490 acres in Wilcox county, according to records of the State Forestry Division.

Remaining in the county is a total of 11,724 acres to be reforested. To do this will require 7,000,000 trees.

Filmland Is Minus a Child Star

Who Will Fill The Empty Throne?

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—Do you realize that Hollywood is minus a front-ranking child star for almost the first time since Jackie Coogan smiled his way to fame in "The Kid"? With the growth and decline of Shirley Temple, the child star throne has been empty. Who will be the next to sit on it—a boy, a girl, or a baby?

Let's look over the infant phenomena already in Hollywood and see how they measure up.

There's Baby Sandy, of course. But it seems to me that Sandy has already reached the peak of her cute career. Sandy's pictures are in the "B" category, and she will have to do something more startling to spurt away from the rest of the field.

Eight-year-old Ann Todd was signed at Twentieth Century-Fox six months ago to be the successor of Shirley Temple. Her option expired a week ago—and it was not renewed. Ann is a bright youngster. She appeared first in "Zaza" about two years ago. Then she was Leslie Howard's daughter in "Intermezzo." Then ditto for Charles Boyer in "All This and Heaven Too." She played "bits" in "The Blue Bird" and "Brigham Young." If Ann had the right part, she might carve an important place for herself in pictures.

Potential child star No. 1 is 5-year-old Carolyn Lee. Carolyn was the same age as Shirley Temple—4—when she first hit the screen in "Honeymoon in Bali." She hasn't any of the cute baby tricks that swept Shirley to the forefront in her first feature film, "Stand Up and Cheer." But she's an amazing child with an almost adult mind. And studio biggies are raving about her performance in her second film, "The Southerner." This was formerly titled "Virginia." What of Larry Simms? Is he of the stuff that dream stars are made?

I don't think so. Larry, like Shirley and Jackie Coogan, was 4 years old at the time of his first screen appearance—Baby Dumpling in the "Blondie" series. He is now 6. It will be interesting to see how he fares with the disappearance of his baby lisp.

Virginia Weidler has been in pictures eight years. And they are now calling her at Metro—"the female Mickey Rooney." Interesting for would-be infant stars—and their mamas—is the fact that Virginia flopped in her first picture, "After Tonight." She was 4 at the time. A year elapsed before they took another chance on her in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

Gloria Jean, in current day rating, sits on the right hand side of that vacant child star throne. She is 12 years old, has been in pictures 18 months, made three movies—two successful—"The Under-Pup" and "A Little Bit of Heaven"; one failure, "If I Had My Way." Gloria has a sweet voice and a large following, but I think she lacks the magnetism necessary for super success.

Did someone say, "but how do you start about the business of being a child-star—or even just being a child performer in pictures?" Let's see how some of the others did it. Jackie Cooper had the good luck to have an uncle who was a director and a mother who was a secretary with the Fox Film Company. (This is the quickest way to crash films! . . . Shirley Temple sailed in under her own steam—navigated by her mother, who put her to training in a Los Angeles dancing school where she was spotted by a talent scout.

Larry Simms found studio attention from the cover of a national magazine (this method, by the way, is even better for pretty models who want to be in movies) . . . Carolyn Lee owes her screen career to Mr. Tracy Barham, theater executive in Ohio and a friends of the moppet's parents. He sent a picture of Carolyn to Frank Freeman, Paramount bigshot. And she was signed up. It was as simple as that.

Jane Withers came to films the hard way. She has worked most of her life—from the age of 3—starting with stage and radio work in Georgia, coming to Hollywood at the age of 6 to "crash" pictures via agents and casting offices. It took her two years to land a real break—the brat in "Bright Eyes."

Man on Diet Is Sold On Idea

By Ida Jean Kain.

You can lead a man to a diet but you can't make him eat it—unless he is sold on the idea! Once thoroughly sold, however, there's no stopping him! A stalwart Oklahoman writes that he has taken off 85 pounds, and nicked 10 inches off the beltline—and that he looks and feels like a new man!

For quite some time his wife had been leaving the clippings on reducing about the house where he couldn't help seeing them and one fine day, on his own initative, he decided to see what would happen if he cut down just a little. He left off his usual lunch and dinner beverage—three glasses at each meal, each glass containing two teaspoons of sugar! "And before I knew it," he says, "I had dropped 20 pounds! Then I got into the spirit of things!"

Even then, however, he didn't go on what you might call a strict diet. He had plenty of vegetables, including potatoes, lean meat, eggs, whole grain bread, cereal, butter and milk. He used brown sugar instead of white and took less of it and restricted desserts, such as pies and cakes, to once a week instead of once a day.

Our reducer was unusually diet-conscious for a man. He emphasizes that all vegetables were cooked in the type of utensil which requires very little water so that the minerals and vitamins were saved. Potatoes were cooked in their jackets. And he used only whole grain breads and cereals. Due to these measures, the menus were kept very high in the protective elements—and he thinks that is the explanation of his excellent health while reducing.

He wanted me to assure you overweights that after you have taken off 20 to 30 pounds you lose some of your desire to overeat. He says:

"Like all fat people I had always thought of myself as a very moderate eater—but now I couldn't eat half as much as I used to."

He didn't like exercise any better than the next fellow and put it off as long as he could. "But after losing the first 30 pounds," he tells it, "I discovered that some exercising had to be done! I neglected these until I noticed the wrinkles in my skin. Then I began to exercise regularly and I have never had any trouble with my face and neck."

In case you're interested, here is a sample of the routine which gave his circulation such a healthy jog and which helped to reduce his beltline from 44 to 34: Sit on the floor with feet extended in front, legs apart, pull up with the abdominal muscles, and bend over to try to touch head to floor. Then, lying stretched to full extension on back, come up to sitting position and bend over to touch fingers to toes. From a standing position with hands on hips, bend at waist and circle trunk in all directions. There are three excellent beltline reducers.

She looks so soft, dainty and feminine, does Ilona Massey, M-G-M actress. And women use dainty bath accessories to acquire just that look and a feeling of self-assurance. It's every woman's desire to indulge herself with luxurious toiletries.

Bath Items Are Favorite Beauty Aids

By Winifred Ware.

There is at least one never-changing feminine whim—a secret desire found in the heart of a woman since far back in ancient days. This is an urge to indulge herself with luxurious, fragrant bath accessories. Since the days of the glamorous Cleopatra, lovely ladies have found fragrant bath oils and colognes soul-satisfying and reassuring.

In grandmother's day the fine ladies had to use their own ingenuity to produce bottles of fragrant colognes. Their favorites were jars of rose petals and bottles of rose water. The petals were collected and cunning little jars were bought for them. On every colonial belle's dressing table was the inevitable bottle of rose water, whose recipe had been handed down for generations from mother to daughter. Today this rose water fragrance still prevails as a favorite. ¼

Reminiscent of a rose water bottle of yesteryear is the very new and very quaint line of "boudoir fixtures"—a rose fragrance to please every woman with its charm—a scented balm and cologne, a bath oil and dusting powder. A faint and precious, cool but "come on" fragrance has been caught and held in each of these preparations. The scented balm, a perfect after-bath "friction" to bring a glow to the body, and the fresh-smelling cologne come in twin bottles, the most adorable little bottles we've ever seen. The milky glass background dotted with tiny roses is reminiscent of "a quaint old lady, small, dainty and fragile." The pair make grand accessories to dress up the vanity. To make the bath really enticing is the bath oil in its octagonal bottle of deep green capped with a lifelike rose in full color. Opening the white box sprinkled with roses and edged with scrolls of pink, you get a whiff of the alluring dusting powder. Complete is this package in every detail, for the puff is included and the box itself is a shaker box.

The manufacturer of this line long will be remembered for these quaint treasure bottles of beauty magic and priced within the reach of the average budget. Such old-fashioned fragrances so attractively packaged we feel will appeal to all types of women and will completely satisfy her. And she will find that the bottle itself will add a decorative note to her dressing table.

After you have called me and found out the names and prices of these items, I am sure you will want to go right down to the stores and get at least one of them for a try. If you do this I fell sure you'll make another trip for the other items. Write to Winifred Ware at The Constitution, inclosing a stamped envelope, if you live out of town.

The Mask Is Safeguard Against Diseases

By Dr. William Brady.

Gauze (washed cheesecloth) masks over nose and mouth are generally worn by surgeons and their assistants in the operating room, also by the anesthetist and by the nurse or nurses whose duties require them to enter the operating room. In some operating rooms where surgical asepsis is rigidly maintained, even physicians or medical students who are permitted to be present as onlookers are required to wear such masks. The purpose, of course, is to prevent possible spray or droplet infection of the wound—droplets of secretion or moisture from nose or mouth shooting forth when the individual speaks. Such spray may consist of invisibly or impalpably fine droplets, yet such droplets may contain germs. Such spray carries two or three feet, at most up to five feet.

Flugge first called attention (1897) to the fact that during speaking, and especially loud talking, coughing and sneezing, tiny droplets of secretion of moisture are thrown off from the mouth. By actual bacteriological tests he and others since (Laschtschenko in 1899, Winslow and Robinson in 1910) proved that these droplets carry germs. Flugge found that the germs in such droplets may be carried as far as nine meters (nearly 30 feet) during hard coughing; the spray given off during quiet conversation carries less than five feet.

Probably the very finest droplets may float about in the air, but there is no evidence that infection is conveyed by such floating moisture droplets—the moisture would evaporate almost immediately, and disease germs as quickly die or lose their virulence in a dry, cool environment. The danger we have to worry about is direct transfer of the spray droplets from one person to another, so that the germs in the droplets are exposed for only an instant to drying and cooling in the air.

Many health agencies have warned the public against the danger of infection by the spray of cough or sneeze, but nothing has been said about the danger of infection by the spray of polite conversation. It is an unpleasant thing to think about, so you must not mention it, the censor of a broadcasting company instructed me when I tried to talk about it over a radio chain.

Not only the surgeon, the anesthetist, the assistant at the operating table, the nurse or attendant or spectator in the operating room should wear a mask, but the nose and throat specialist or the physician examining or treating nose or throat, the dentist, the hair-dresser, the barber, the oculist or optometrist or optician adjusting eye-glasses should wear a mask, for his or her own safety and for the safely of patient, client or customer.

MY DAY: No Supreme Sacrifices Now

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—I spent a little while with our son, Jimmy, yesterday afternoon while he was winding up his business trip in New York city. The necessity for reporting for duty in the marine reserve on November 1 requires the severance of any business connections with which he cannot keep in touch, but he seemed to feel that he had accomplished all he wanted to do when he left somewhat hurriedly to catch his plane. I gather he made it successfully, for I heard nothing further from him.

Our old friend, Major Henry S. Hooker, brought a very charming young couple to dine with me at my apartment last evening. I made a sad discovery. These younger people run up three flights of stairs and do not even puff at the top! All the rest of us climb slowly and arrive breathless. Certain limitations come to us with age, don't they?

I took the midnight train down to Washington and found the President in fine form. I am going out to dinner tonight, so I am lunching with him today instead. It certainly is nice to see Mr. Marvin McIntyre come in again with the secretariat in the morning. He looks well and is even threatening a trip to New York city.

A press conference this morning emphasized something which has been on my mind for some days. One of the newspaper girls said that the wife of an army officer had telephoned to her office remarking on the fact that so many newspaper pictures gave prominence to the tearful farewells of the National Guard soldiers who were going to their winter camps. I understand only too well how many of these youngsters who have never before been away from home find it hard to face a year of separation, perhaps without any opportunity to go home or have the family visit.

In wartime everybody is keyed up to the point of making any sacrifice. If you read Dorothy Canfield Fisher's "Petunias, That's for Remembrance," you will realize that our Vermont and New Hampshire women were aided in the Civil War days by the fact that they had little time for repining, for the work of the farm had to be carried on by the women. But this is not war time.. These boys are going for training and their families have no reason not to hope their health will be benefited, that they will get their jobs back, or that this training will be of value to them.

I think the records show that, with the free medical care, the regular life and the good food; the health of the army, navy and marine corps is better than average. Certainly the discipline and the varied types of training these boys will receive should either make them better workmen in the skills they have acquired, or give them new skills which will be of value to them.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Father: "Son, I have time to talk with you now. I wish you'd finish the story I didn't have time to hear this morning. It sounded interesting."

Father: "I don't have time to listen to you. I have to get to the office. Tell me your story sore other time."

Son: "You never have time to listen."

Parents should always see to it that "some other time" becomes a definite time.

Women Still Like Men Who Are Self-Confident

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: To begin with, we have been friends for a bit over two years but have only been dating for about six months. She was formerly the sweetheart of a very good friend of mine who married another girl. We have been frank and above reproach in all of our relations although we both realize that neither is perfect but are just average human beings. We also have a great many interests in common and have been enjoying each other's company during the weekends since we both work and live about 40 miles apart and we find it convenient for me to drive over to visit her under this arrangement.

She has two other suitors who like myself could make her reasonably happy since we are all situated favorably in life. She has given me some encouragement but has been frank enough to say that she wasn't spontaneously in love with me and that she wanted to be fair about it by letting me know that she didn't want to take unfair advantages of me in any way.

Her relatives have been very nice to me whenever I visit with them and I have observed that her mother is much attached to her. I am out to win regardless of obstacles and if I am destined to lose her, I will lose like a man. How would you diagnose the case from the foregoing facts.

OUT ON A LIMB.

Answer: Brother, you don't believe in yourself nor in your power to make the girl love you. If she were answering the last call, had not other beau in sight, she'd probably snap you up and say grace over you. But so long as there are several prospects who are more confident, more importunate, more determined to take charge of her, you aren't likely to become her white-haired lad.

There's a woman for you, begging for a big boss to rule over her, even though she doesn't enjoy being bossed and won't submit to it after the honeymoon! Presumably it's the old primitive instinct that rises to the surface in the love game: the instinct for being the little independent woman looking up to the big strong heman who believes in himself and compels others to believe in him and love him.

So there's my diagnosis of your case, which put in to poetry reads: "Faint heart ne'er won fair lady."

Charming, Poised Manners Win Invitations and Friends

Delightfully poised—these two popular members of the social set! Off for a gala evening, each one can rely on the other's good manners never to create an awkward moment.

At the elevator she enters and leaves first. He removes his hat, as in correct for a man when in an elevator with women, unless he's in a crowded business elevator.

Arriving at the party, they greet their hostess with a cordial "Good evening, Mrs. Jameson. It was so nice of you to ask us." When buffet refreshments are served he courtesously asks his partner, "What may I bring you?" She will never start to eat her own refreshments until he has his own.

Such smooth behavior isn't a matter of guesswork. To be a favorite companion at social affairs, to be a popular guest, be sure of the simple but oh! so important rules of etiquette.

At a large party where all-around introductions are impossible do you hesitate to talk to people you don't know? Quite all right to chat without an introduction.

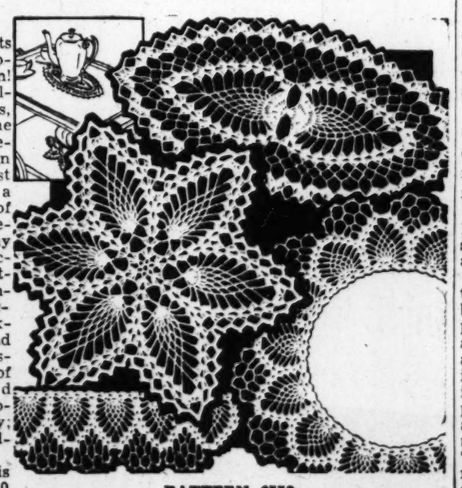

Or, finding your table in a restaurant, how conspicuous you feel if you don't know what to do! When the headwaiter leads the way the woman goes first, the man follows. She takes the chair the headwaiter pulls out for her. But if there is no headwaiter, the man takes the lead and pulls out her chair.

Purely Personal Chatter About Atlanta Debutantes

By Sally Forth.

● ● ● THOUGH LOVELY Evelyn Harrison is an ardent travel-enthusiast, she has decided nevertheless to "stay put" long enough to become a member of the 1940-1941 Debutante Club to the delight of her many friends and admirers.

Evelyn, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harrison, will be formally presented to Atlanta society by her parents at an elaborate reception to be followed by a supper-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club on December 12.

The charming bud's host of friends have had few glimpses of her for the past few years because of Evelyn's frequent trips both in this country and abroad. Only recently she returned from a plane trip to San Francisco, Cal., where she spent a month with Betty Bunker. The duo of belles, who were classmates at Pine Manor Junior College in Wellesley, Mass., last winter, spent a week in Oregon before the Atlantan journeyed to Victoria, B. C., to visit Ruth Horton, another former classmate.

EVELYN HARRISON.

In December, 1938, Evelyn enjoyed a Caribbean cruise with a group of students from Baldwin School in Bryn Mawr, Pa., where she was enrolled at that time. In the summer of 1938 the attractive bud spent several months touring Europe with a party in which Helen Diggs, of Washington, D. C., was also a member. Helen is a familiar figure in this city, having often visited her aunt, Mrs. George Street, and her grandmother, Mrs. George Muse, here.

In between her numerous Jaunts Evelyn has been a student at North Fulton and Washington Seminary, where she was a member of the Sigma Delta sorority.

Though the vivacious belle has studied a variety of subjects, her interest in art has remained paramount. In fact, when the debut season ends, she plans to resume her chosen study which is devoted to dress designing and interior decorating.

Evelyn, who is a petite and dainty blonde, possesses sparkling blue eyes. She is noted for her charming personality, which has endeared her to many friends. The belle, who is being entertained extensively during the debut season, finds time to indulge in her favorite sports, golf and tennis, as well as her favorite diversion, which is dancing.

Affairs Planned For Miss Aycock

Miss Betty Aycock, lovely bride-elect daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Aycock, continues to be feted at social affairs prior to her marriage to Dr. Henry C. Dorris. On Tuesday Miss Aycock will be honored at the luncheon at which Mrs. W. W. Leman will entertain at her home on Fourteenth street.

On October 30 Miss Aycock will share honors with Miss Barbara Beam, popular bride-elect, at the bridge party at which Miss Florrie Guy will be hostess at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue. Miss Betty Brown will give a bride-luncheon on November 8 at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue for the bride-elect and Miss Barbara Settle, another prominent bride-to-be.

On November 14 Mrs. W. P. Felker will be hostess at a luncheon at her home on Sinclair drive for the future bride, and on November 19 she will again be honored at the luncheon to be given by Mrs. Royal Camp at her home on Rumson road.

Mrs. Allen Aycock will entertain Miss Aycock and her fiance at a dinner party at her home on Arbor avenue on November 20. Guests will include members of the Aycock-Dorris wedding personnel. Mr. and Mrs. Aycock, parents of the bride-elect, will honor the wedding personnel at a buffet supper after the rehearsal on November 22 at their home on Courtenay drive.

Mrs. Sorensen Speaks.

The Georgia Evening College Woman's Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Knox Walker on Los Angeles avenue. Mrs. Horace Elliott assisted in entertaining.

Plans for a play, which will be the major project of the club for the year, were discussed. Faculty members of the college will take part. The date of the play will be announced later.

Mrs. E. J. Sorensen gave a talk on the "Far Eastern Situation." Mrs. Sorensen is an active member of the Atlanta League of Women Voters and represents the league as chairman of the foreign relations board. At the conclusion of her talk a round table discussion was held.

Miss Corinna Aikens Weds Evan Barker.

Miss Corinna Loring Aikens, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harold Aikens, became the bride of Evan G. Barker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Barker, at a ceremony taking place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Emory Theological Chapel. Rev. Paul A. Barker, brother of the groom, officiated. Miss Kathleen Jones, pianist, and Miss Carol Jones, violinist, presented the nuptial music.

The altar was banked with ferns, before which were placed vases of white and yellow chrysanthemums and Picardy gladioli. Candelabra held lighted tapers.

Miss Martha Cates, cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a model of beige crepe fashioned on tailored lines. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of talisman roses.

Dr. H. E. Barker acted as the groom's best man and Charles H. Aikens Jr. and Timm Aikens, brothers of the bride, were the ushers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a shirtwaist dress of rose sheer wool, featuring long puffed sleeves and a pleated skirt.

Among the out-of-town guests were Rev. and Mrs. Paul A. Barker, of Ingalls, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Barker, Miss Catherine Barker, of Haleyville, Ala., and Dr. R. E. Barker, of Boaz, Ala.

Beta Sigma Phi To Give Party.

The Iota Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will entertain at a Halloween party on Wednesday at the home of Miss Hilda Summers, 1055 Maryland avenue, N. E., at 8:30 o'clock.

Black and orange motif will be carried out in decorations for the home, combined with fall flowers. This is to be a masked affair and members and their pledges will attend.

The preferential tea of the Iota Chapter was held recently at the home of Miss Frances McLain on Woodland avenue. Receiving with Miss McLain were Miss Anne Wilhoit, Miss Julia Goins, Miss Hilda Summers and Miss Mildred Abernathy.

Mayson P.-T. A. Plans Carnival.

At the recent James L. Mayson P.-T. A. meeting plans were made for a Halloween carnival to be held on Friday at the school.

Miss Mary Strout's room won the attendance prize. Captain Jack Malcolm spoke on "Safety on the Highways." Refreshments were served by sixth and seventh grades.

Wiener Roast.

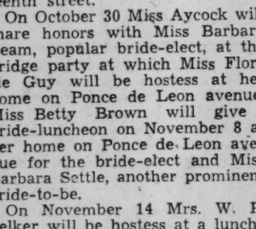

A wiener roast was given recently at the outdoor grill at the home of Mrs. Fred Brown, at 832 Durant place, in honor of her son and daughter, Fred and Marion Brown.

Dancing and games were enjoyed by the guests.

CLIP THIS RECIPE

11c McCormick Golden Angel Food Cake

RECIPE OF THE WEEK TESTED AND APPROVED BY THE McCORMICK CONSUMER BOARD

4 egg yolks
1 tbsp. cold water
1 cup sugar
⅓ cup hot water
¾ tsp McCormick vanilla
⅛ tsp. McCormick almond
1½ cups cake flour
1½ tsps. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
4 egg whites
½ tsp. McCormick cream of tartar

Beat egg yolks with cold water until very light. Add sugar gradually. Beat in hot water, vanilla and almond extracts. Add the combined flour, baking powder and salt. Beat only until batter is smooth. Beat egg whites until frothy, add cream of tartar and continue beating until stiff. Fold into first mixture and pour into ungreased tube pan. Bake in a slow oven at 325°F. for 1¼ hours. Allow cake to cool in pan.

NOTE: — Better ingredients mean better results with any recipe. Use McCormick's rich, pure, genuine Vanilla — it's "tops" for fine flavoring quality. Ask your grocer for McCormick Tea, Spices and Extracts.

Mark Takes Glory to Dine at His Home---Father, Sister Are Not Congenial

SYNOPSIS.

Tearing off her bridal veil and dress, Glory Stevens declares passionately that she can't marry Arthur Landis—that she is going to Hollywood. It isn't that she doesn't like Arthur but since she was a little girl she has wanted to be an actress like her beautiful mother, known on the stage as Constance Brent. Madeline Stevens died when her daughter was only 13 and Glory had promised her father to forget her dreams of the stage. But now, with Arthur awaiting her at the church, she pleads with her chum Beth Adams to help her get away from the house unnoticed. She slips downstairs, evades her father, hurried away in Beth's car and just catches a Chicago-Los Angeles train, the old station master cashing a check her father had given her as a wedding present. In the Pullman dressing room she meets Helen Jamison, who, after a hard battle, has won some Hollywood recognition as a character actress. She advises Glory to return home but somehow is impressed by the 19-year-old girl's determination and, calling herself a fool, suggests that Glory take an inexpensive apartment in the same building as hers. Daily Glory makes unsuccessful rounds of the studios. When her money is about gone, Helen takes her to Scottie Weston, her own agent, after telling him to "give her the works," discourage her thoroughly and send her home. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT VII.

Scottie summoned the waiter and ordered three highballs. Glory was not allowed to drink or smoke. Not that she wanted to particularly but sometimes she resented being treated like a child. Scottie and Helen smoked and drank constantly but they insisted it was "bad for one's health, bad for the nerves." Glory would need her strength.

"It's a good thing I like soft drinks," she told Mark.

"You've probably never had a drink in your life," he replied.

It was true. What an uncanny way Mark had of seeing through people. But then, of course, he was a lawyer. That was his business.

"Shall we dance?" Mark asked, smiling.

He was so tall that the top of Glory's head barely touched his chin. He made her feel like a little girl.

"Have you been in Hollywood long?" he was asking.

"Almost two months. Scottie and Helen have been wonderful to me."

"Scottie's a good egg. I've known him a long time."

"He's doing everything he can to help me."

"I'm going to help you, too," Mark said, smiling down at her.

"But I thought you didn't approve of women having careers."

"I don't," Mark replied. "I'm going to help you in a different way."

Glory lifted puzzled eyes to his.

"Your friend seems interested," she told Scottie.

"Well, why not? Scottie shrugged. "It will probably be that way with every man who meets her."

"Including you." It was a statement, not a question.

"Sure," Scottie admitted honestly. "Including me. But no one stands a chance with Glory right now. What she wants is a career and I'm going to be the one to give it to her."

Helen smiled. "I was never so surprised in my life as that day in your office when you said you would help her—after promising me you would send her home."

"My personal feelings had nothing to do with it," Scottie insisted. "I know the minute I saw her that she was a natural."

"She makes you believe in things," Helen admitted.

Scottie attempted to make his voice light, "Sure, I know! Let's have another drink!"

That night, back in the apartment, Helen said, "You know, Glory, Scottie's a grand person," brushing her hair. "I know he is, Helen. He's a darling."

"Well, that takes care of that," her friend replied.

"What on earth are you talking about?" Glory asked. "You know, Helen, I think this Mark Spencer is the most interesting man I've ever met."

"You aren't falling in love at this point, are you?"

"Of course not! I just mean he's awfully nice, that's all. I want a career, not a husband."

She turned to the older woman eagerly, beautiful even without make-up. "My romance must be a great adventure, Helen! When I fall in love I'll have to be swept off my feet!"

Helen yawned, "Well, baby, for your own sake I hope you never find it. Nothing can come of love like that but heartbreak! It's the quiet everyday brand of love that counts."

But Glory was not interested. "My feet hurt," she complained.

After Helen had gone to her own apartment, Glory went to the window and looked out into the California night. Did fame really have a price—and love? Was Helen right or had she just been unfortunate? The air was filled with the fragrance of orange blossoms.

"As long as I live," Glory thought, "I'll never forget that smell."

The subtle fragrance drifted through the night as sweet and penetrating as the strains of a violin. The blossoms, the twinkling lights of Hollywood and the waning moon! It was all like a stage setting, Glory mused, shivering in her thin negligee. One of these days the curtain was going up on the second act! What then? She had already found excitement and glamour. Would she find success? Would her name ever be sparkling in big letters over Grauman's Chinese theater? And would she find romance, too? Would she find her dream sweetheart? Glory flung back her head and took a deep breath of the cold night air.

"I wonder if I'm missing something by not being in love?" she thought.

Glory became increasingly fond of Mark Spencer. He was with her every available moment, but instead of taking her to familiar night spots, they went for drives in the country, or sometimes down to the wind-swept beach for a fish dinner. Mark took her into Olivera street where the Spanish restaurants and colorful music thrilled her midwestern heart. Mark showed her the mountains, the desert, the seashore, the old missions. It was a relief after the glitter and glamour and strain of Scottie's campaign to spend pleasant hours late in the afternoon with Mark. Glory's school closed at 12 and almost every day Mark managed to leave early.

One night he took her to have dinner with his father and sister. Scottie had reported that the elder Spencer was a "stuffed shirt," a "complete snob," but to Glory he appeared a quiet, nervous man, tall like his son, but with gray hair. He had little or nothing to say to his family or Glory. Mark's mother was dead and a housekeeper presided over the big house. Marian, Mark's little sister, was a spoiled, sulky girl of Glory's age. It was easy to see that the three of them were not congenial. There was an obvious strain at the dinner table.

After dinner Marian drew her into a corner of the huge firelit living room. "Are you an actress?" she asked curiously.

"Not yet," Glory answered.

"I wanted to be," Marian confided, "but dad wouldn't let me." She added tactlessly, "He doesn't approve of anyone connected with the movies."

Mark's father departed shortly after dinner for a business appointment. Marian went to a party with a callow-looking youth. And Mark and Glory were left alone in front of the fireplace. Glory loved the high-cellinged room with its heavy, massive furniture. She settled herself comfortably in a big chair.

"Perfectly happy," Glory answered.

"I have to be home at ten," Glory said. "There's a party at one of the producer's homes. Scottie's going to take me."

"I never go to parties like that. They bore me."

"Yes, I know. Scottie said he was surprised to see you at the night club the time I met you—and alone, too," Glory teased.

But there was no hint of humor in Mark's reply. "I was looking for someone," he said flatly. And Glory had an uncanny feeling that he was concealing something.

"You're not ready to give up yet?" he asked.

"My career? I haven't even started yet."

Her companion sighed. "And so all these days we've had together haven't had any effect?"

Glory patted his hand affectionately. "I've loved every minute of it, Mark. But my work, well, that's something else again."

"This is my idea of happiness, Glory." Mark stretched out his long legs in front of the fire. "Being here with you this way. There is contentment and peace here. Don't you feel it?"

Yes, Glory felt it. She was always happy and relaxed with Mark. She didn't have to be "putting on an act." She didn't have to worry about her make-up or her clothes or hair. She was just Glory Stevens. Not the Glory Stevens who must be seen at the "right places" in trailing gowns with Scottie Weston.

Mark's hand closed over hers. "You still want to see your name in lights, don't you, Glory?"

"Yes. I've got to be a success, Mark. It's what I've wanted all my life."

There was silence as they both gazed into the dancing flames, then Mark said, "And what about your personal life? Don't you ever expect to get married, and have a home—children?"

Glory laughed. "Oh, I suppose so, some day. But I'm young, Mark. I don't need any personal life yet."

Mark smiled. "Some day I'm going to make you eat those words."

Then suddenly he changed the conversation. He told her about his college days in the east, the year he had spent in Europe, some of his more interesting cases—and the minutes passed swiftly into hours. Glory had almost forgotten the time until the clock in the hall chimed 10.

"Good heavens, Mark, I'll have to go! Scottie will be furious if I keep him waiting. Tonight is important."

For one mad moment Glory wondered if this could be love. But no, of course not! Love was something that thrilled you. Something glamorous and exciting! Mark was a grand person but she did not love him.

Glory wore black chiffon to the party that night. It was the most sophisticated dress that Van had sent, with a tight bodice, swirling skirt and tiny rhinestone straps. The party was a typically Hollywood affair. Beautiful women, extravagantly gowned. Lavish floral displays and champagne iced in elaborate silver containers.

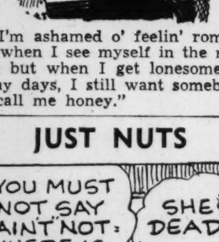

"Max Cavell is here," Scottie told her.

It was the first time Glory had seen Cavell since the day she lost her job at the studio—but he spoke to her. She had hoped that Mona Greer would not be present, but this was a party for one of the new stars from her studio so she probably would be.

Continued Tomorrow.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES) The entire day may be considered very favorable with the better part of the day after 3:41 p. m. Appointments, meetings, conferences, financial affairs, public matters and social activities should result in much harmony. This will be a most auspicious day for meeting unusual people, and anything that deals with the government or public activities.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS). Before 4:30 p. m. you may have the impulse to ack quickly, speak sharply, for your nerves may be on edge. Travel and change are apt to result adversely, or with many hindrances. You may have the desire to go ahead regardless, but calmness will be the best policy. After 4:30 p. m. you will likely be able to make better adjustments in your work and can make plans for slow but consistent progress.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The entire day may be considered very favorable, with the better part of the day after 3:41 p. m.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—An excellent day for making appointments, meetings, conferences, financial affairs and public matters.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—There may be some slight tension, animosity, or desire to make sharp retorts today, but if you will hold this tendency in check, the foundation may be laid for favorable deals in business, for contacts with influential people, for sociable interests and works of art.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Previous to 12:14 p. m. the influences favor general business activities, dealings with executives and officials and seeking favors. Between 12:14 p. m. and 10:07 p. m. discretion should be used around domestic affairs.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Before 10:59 a. m. favors attention to only ordinary and routine matters. The remainder of the day you can give full rein to your activities, whether business, sports or personal.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—New beginnings today are likely to be very interesting, but not in the way that you would prefer, for you will have a tendency to meet disruption and inharmony. The period does not especially favor signing papers and use caution in dealing with near relatives and near neighbors.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—An excellent day for financial interests, property interests, legal affairs. Banking and investment interests are especially favored. New beginnings should develop with swift strides.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN) — New beginnings made today should be surprisingly successful. An excellent day for obtaining better co-operation, for business, for plans benefiting others, and for decisions in general.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The entire day is auspicious for dealings with loved ones. For literary efforts, for making plans for the future. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3:10 p. m. The day does not especially favor making sudden changes or for putting into practice radical ideas.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The most important time of the day for taking important action along all lines appears to be after 12:35 noon. An excellent period for constructive work in matters of finances, personal advancement, constructive planning for future prospects and interviewing or consulting people in important positions.

Air Police Formed.

Mexico is organizing an aerial police force under direction of the civil aviation department in Mexico City. Civil regulation over flights of transport and private planes has proved inadequate, leading to confusion regarding times of departure and arrival, special permits and other regulations.

THEATER — That phenomenal young man who is at the top of the movie box office heap by a healthy margin, Mickey Rooney, teams up with his movie playmate, Judy Garland, to make the Radio Theater a gala event over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight. "Strike Up the Band," one of their recent cinematic triumphs, is the play they'll do under the producership of William DeMille, who is substituting for his brother, Cecil B. DeMille for the broadcast.

This will be the first time Mickey and Judy have appeared on the Radio Theater and it's the irony of fate that keeps Cecil B. DeMille away from home this night. He's in Chicago for the premiere of his new movie, "Northwest Mounted Police," but he'll be back for the following week's production.

CONCERT — Richard Crooks, tenor star of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and regular soloist on the Monday Concert program, will return to that program for its broadcast to be heard over WSB at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Mr. Crooks' featured offering will be "Parted," by Tosti.

The noted tenor will be assisted during the half-hour program by the symphony orchestra of 70 members under the direction of Alfred Wallenstein. The orchestral highlight of the concert will be a performance of the "Hungarian Dance No. 6," by Johannes Brahms.

The program includes:
Prelude to "La Traviata," by Verdi. (Orchestra).
Parted, by Tosti. (Mr. Crooks).
Hungarian Dance No. 6, by Brahms. (Orchestra).
My Message, By d'Hardelot. Chevauchee Cosaque, by Fourdrain (Mr. Crooks).
Thousand and One Nights' Waltz, by Strauss. (Orchestra).
Mother o' Mine, by Tours. (Mr. Crooks).

TELEPHONE HOUR—Two familiar but contrasting numbers, Del Riego's "Green Hills of Ireland" and Kern's "The Night Was Made for Love" serve as the top tunes by James Melton on his 'phone hour over WSB at 7 o'clock tonight.

The tenor will also be heard in a duet with Francia White. Donald Voorhees conducts the symphony orchestra in a special arrangement of "Valse Trieste," by Sibelius.

The program includes:
Second Hungarian Rhapsody, by Liszt. (Orchestra).
Green Hills of Ireland, by Del Riego. The Night Was Made for Love, by Kern. (Mr. Melton).
Valse Triste, by Sibelius. (Orchestra).
I'se Gwine Back to Dixie, by White. (Chorus).
La Paloma, by Yradier. (Mr Melton and Miss White).

Question Rises In Wife-Killing 'Confession'

Prosecution Says Tate Husband Admits It; Youth Claims Promise.

Grady Vandiviere, solicitor general of the Blue Ridge Circuit, announced yesterday that J. M. Carney, 19-year-old Tate youth, had admitted killing his wife and partially dismembering her body, but Carney, from his cell in the Fulton Tower, last night denied committing the murder. He admitted making the alleged "confession" statement, after Vandiviere promised to let him go back to Tate and view the body of his wife.

Vandiviere and Sheriff J. M. Poole, of Pickens county, questioned Carney yesterday in the office of Captain Ben W. Seabrook, head of the Atlanta police identification bureau.

"I did not intend to kill her," Vandiviere said Carney told him. "We quarreled and I choked her."

Mrs. Carney, a 16-year-old expectant mother, was found dead in the Carney home at Tate Friday morning. Her feet and one arm had been severed from the body. The youthful husband was taken into custody by Sheriff Poole after he had slashed his right arm and wrist.

Carney, Vandiviere said, admitted severing both feet and an arm from Mrs. Carney in order to get the body into an automobile and carry the body away.

"I told them all of this when they promised me I could go back to Tate and see my wife if I confessed," Carney told a Constitution reporter last night. "However, I do not remember anything that happened in my home Thursday night, and do not know how my wife met death. I just told them that so I could see her again."

"We did not promise to carry him back to Tate," Vandiviere said. "He made the statement without us promising him anything."

S. P. McEachern Dies at Age of 61

Samuel P. McEachern, 61, of 697 Lawton street, S. W., died early yesterday at a private sanitarium.

As a youth, Mr. McEachern was employed by the Industrial Life and Health Insurance Company, and remained with that organization until his death. He was a member of the Park Street Methodist church, and the Yaarab Temple of the Shrine.

Surviving are his wife; two daughters, Mrs. W. G. Caraker and Mrs. J. C. Tanner; three sons, Samuel P. Jr., David C. and Jack McEachern. He also is survived by two sisters, Mrs. A. C. Cobb, of Cedartown, and Miss Eufaula McEachern, and by a brother, Fred McEachern.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock today at the chapel of J. Austin Dillon, with the Rev. L. L. Burch officiating, and the interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Services Held In Observance Of Navy Day

800 Atlantans Visit Tech Armory at Open House.

Attendance of approximately 800 Atlantans at the open house at Georgia Tech's Naval Armory and special services in churches throughout the city marked Atlanta's observance of Navy Day yesterday.

The Tech armory was open from 2 until 5 o'clock in the afternoon and a corps of cadets from the school's R. O. T. C. and the Atlanta Battalion, Naval Reserves, guided visiters through the building and explained the workings of the equipment.

Herbert Warner Dies at Age of 80

Herbert K. Warner, 80, 733 Central avenue, for many years office manager of the Warner Plumbing and Heating Company, died yesterday morning at his home.

Mr. Warner is survived by his sister, Mrs. Leila McNish, and two brothers, O. F. and Charlie J. Warner.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the chapel of J. Austin Dillon, with the Rev. C. A. Hall officiating. Interment will be in West View.

Mrs. Martin Rites To Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Thigpen Martin, widely known in civic, political and religious circles, who died Saturday at her home, 341 Peachtree avenue, N. E., will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill, Joseph J. Hopkins, C. S., officiating. Interment will be in Crestlawn cemetery.

For many years, Mrs. Martin resided in Macon, and she was the first reader of the First Christian Science church of Macon. In 1912, Mrs. Martin directed the publicity for the election of President Woodrow Wilson.

Mrs. McDonnold Dies Here at 72

Mrs. Ida F. McDonnold, 72, pioneer Atlanta resident, died yesterday at the home, 594 Parkway drive, N. E.

Mrs. McDonnold was the widow of the late W. O. McDonnold, for many years a building contractor and real estate man here.

She is survived by two sons, H. S., and B. F. McDonnold, of Cleveland; a daughter, Mrs. F. R. Winningham, and by a sister, Mrs. Louis Trotzier.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Mrs. Lorena Summers Dies in Her 70th Year

Mrs. Lorena Summers, 69, of 821 Gordon street, S. W., died last night at a private sanitarium.

Mrs. Summers, originally of Cedartown, was the widow of the late William Summers, prominent contractor.

She is survived by five sons, W. R. McDonald, of Barnesville; W. L. Summers, of Pensacola; V. S., J. V. and F. A. Summers; a sister, Mrs. Ethel Griffin, of Rome, and a brother, Ab Grisham.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

CanadianDestroyerSunk In Collision; 140 Die

OTTAWA, (Monday) Oct. 28.—(UP)—The naval ministry early today announced the loss of the Canadian destroyer Margaree and 140 of her officers and men as result of collision with a merchantman in the North Atlantic the night of October 22.

Only 31 of the 171 officers and men aboard are known to have been saved. One American was known to be among the crew dead—James Marin Henderson, of Washington, D. C.

U. S. Navy Best In World, High Officials Assert

By The Associated Press.

The nation heard from three of its highest Navy officials yesterday that the United States fleet was the most powerful in the world, but was told, too, that this country was still vulnerable to attack from a coalition of enemies.

Taking part in a broadcast discussion of American sea power on the 19th annual Navy Day were Secretary Knox, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and Lewis Compton, assistant secretary of the Navy.

Stark, speaking from Washington in a nation-wide broadcast (CBS) said: "We must consider the possibility of simultaneous attacks in either or both oceans." Knox spoke on the same program from Chicago and counselled that "we must not ignore this well-remembered warning: "It is later than you think."

Reporting on the progress of naval expansion, Compton said in a broadcast (MBS) from Orange, N. J., that the goal of a two-ocean Navy, for which congress authorized an outlay of $4,000,000,000, was well ahead of schedule.

Greatest Ever Undertaken.

Knox termed the Navy's expansion the greatest ever undertaken by any nation.

"The new American Navy which is being laid down and which will come into being in the next five years will be thoroughly competent to meet any possible combination of enemies that could be brought against us," he asserted.

"With the new Navy equipped and afloat, its offensive power plus our insular position will provide the best security we can have in a world dominated by brute force."

Saying that it was logical to build the Navy to dominant strength, Knox said that the "tragic events of the past year in Europe have served to emphasize anew the vital advantage of sea defenses."

"The only nation which has survived the German attack has been that nation which because of its insular position could and did build its first line of defense on the sea," he declared.

British Fleet There.

"Fundamentally, the defense of England in the last three months by its magnificent Royal Air Force was only made possible because the British fleet was there to halt the Germans at the water's edge."

Admiral Stark said that since last Navy Day 25 new ships had joined the fleet.

"Forty-six more," he added, "have been reconditioned and are in service, exclusive of the 50 old destroyers being transferred to the British. . . .

"In the service there are now more than 170,000 sailors, an increase of approximately 61,000 since last Navy Day, and in the marine corps, 37,000 men, an increase of 17,000.

"At sea, in the air, and on shore, we are applying the practical lessons learned by experience in Europe," he said.

In his "progress report," Compton said that destroyers joined the fleet during the past year at the rate of one every three weeks, and that shipbuilding generally was well ahead of schedule.

In 1933, he asserted, the Navy was "a decade behind the parade," but added that since then 137 combatant ships of nearly a half million tons had been added to the sea forces.

645 Men o' War.

Compared to the 320 ships in commission now in the Atlantic and Pacific, the complete two-ocean armada will include 645 men o' war. Among them 32 battleships, 18 aircraft carriers, 85 cruisers, 325 destroyers, 185 submarines and more than 14,000 airplanes.

Of the vessels completed since last Navy Day, 16 were delivered ahead of schedule, Compton said. Destroyers that once took 30 months to build now in some cases take only 20 months, he declared.

The naval powder factory "doubled its output literally overnight," he said, adding that within six months "we will be making 12 times as much powder as we were making a year ago."

He said the ordnance bureau had the responsibility of acquiring nearly $3,000,000,000 worth of guns, armor and projectiles for the completed fleet.

"Each year 2,500 naval aviators will be graduated from Pensacola," Compton continued. "With the completion of active training centers at Jacksonville, Miami and Corpus Christi the 16,000 pilot program will be carried out in an orderly and efficient manner, and this number will be doubled."

Last Rites Today For Pistol Victim

Funeral services for Mrs. Thelma Burgess, 22, who died Saturday at Grady hospital from pistol wounds inflicted by her estranged husband, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Temple Baptist church, just 24 hours after services in the same church for her estranged husband, Ralph Burgess.

Mrs. Burgess was wounded fatally Thursday night while on West Marietta street, near the Exposition Cotton Mills. Burgess fatally wounded himself afterwards.

The Rev. George McLarty will conduct the services. Interment for Burgess was in Sardis cemetery, while Mrs. Burgess will be interred in Hillcrest cemetery, with J. Allen Couch in charge.

Farmer Found Dead, Mark of Rope on Neck

Head Is Also Crushed; Body Discovered in Bed of Dry Creek.

MOULTRIE, Ga., Oct. 27.—(AP) With his head crushed and the distinct imprint of a rope about his neck, the body of Bishop Martin, 52, bachelor farmer of Colquitt county, was found in the bed of a dry creek about six miles from his home this morning.

Martin had been dead six or eight hours when discovered, Coroner S. A. White reported.

A physician's examination of the body revealed a fracture of the skull, but Coroner White expressed the opinion that death was the result of strangulation. Although no rope or other instrument by which Martin could have been strangled was found, the imprint of something similar to a rope completely encircled the neck, the coroner said.

Martin resided in a small house on the farm of his brother-in-law, J. M. Gregory, on the Quitman road, about five miles from Moultrie. He had dinner Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Gregory, then left for his home, a few yards away. Gregory told the coroner that Martin had between $300 and $400 on his person Saturday night.

Nothing was found on his person this morning except three plugs of tobacco, the coroner said.

His home was arranged neatly, leading local officials to believe that Martin was picked up by some motorists a short distance from the home, choked to death with a rope, robbed and thrown over a small bridge into the dry creek.

A coroner's jury this afternoon returned a verdict stating that Martin came to his death "by strangulation at the hands of a party or parties unknown."

Rabbi Sandmel Speaks Tonight

Rabbi Samuel Sandmel, B'nai B'rith Hillel director at the University of North Carolina, will be guest speaker tonight at the meeting of Gate City Lodge No. 144 B'nai B'rith.

The meeting is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock at the Standard club, preceded by a dinner for members and guests which will be served at 7 o'clock.

Rabbi Sandmel's subject will be "Hillel on the Campus—My Experiences, Serious and Otherwise." Rabbi Sandmel is in charge of B'nai B'rith's foundation at North Carolina, which furnishes extra-curricular religious educational opportunities for students.

Windsor To Convene Legislature With Pomp

NASSAU, Bahamas, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Traditional pomp and ceremony will mark the convening of the Bahamian legislature by the Duke of Windsor Tuesday morning.

The body adjourned only last month, but war-time problems of a British colony require the legislators to remain in session most of the year.

Nazis 'Fight' Each Other Trying To Decieve RAF

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Nazi air raiders tried out a new trick on the British today to avoid RAF attacks and failed, the air ministry reported tonight.

Over South England, the ministry said, British Hurricane pilots saw German planes at 20,000 feet faking drive attacks on one another in an apparent effort to convince British planes in the distance that other British planes were already fighting them.

But the British said they weren't fooled.

Atlanta Man Heads Catholic Association

Bernard J. Kane Elected at Convention in Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 27.—(AP) Bernard J. Kane, Atlanta, was elected president of the Catholic Laymen's Association of Georgia at the silver jubilee convention here today. He succeeded Dr. J. Reid Broderick, Savannah.

Other officers elected include: M. J. Callaghan Sr., of Macon, first vice president; Hugh Kinchley, of Augusta, executive secretary; John B. McCallum, of Atlanta, recording secretary; Miss Cecile C. Ferry, of Augusta, financial secretary; Thomas F. Walsh, of Savannah, treasurer, and Alvin M. McAuliffe, of Augusta, auditor.

Archbishop Amlete Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, was honor guest at the convention. He left tonight for Washington after being royally received by Savannahians.

The prelate celebrated a solemn high mass at the Cathedral this morning, at which the Most Rev. Emmet M. Walsh, Charleston, preached the sermon. A luncheon attended by 800 persons honored Archbishop Cicognani after the mass, while in the afternoon a public meeting of the association was held at the municipal auditorium.

Diamond Frontier Opens at Capitol

"Diamond Frontier," an adventure story of diamond diggers in East Africa in the latter part of the 19th century, opened a three-day run at the Capitol theater yesterday.

Victor McLaglen is starred as a diamond dealer who heads a combine of crooks who dominate the independent diggers, violating their claims and even forcing them to pay large sums for common drinking water. John Loder plays the part of the young doctor, who, upon returning from medical school in London, sets out to establish some form of law and order, getting a prison sentence for his trouble. Anne Nagel plays the part of his sweetheart.—H. J.

Judy Canova, Band Praised By Reviewer

Screen, Radio Star Accorded Enthusiastic Reception Here.

Judy Canova, screen, stage and radio star, who claims Unadilla, Ga., as her home town, professionally opened a week's engagement at the Roxy theater yesterday with Lang Thompson and his orchestra.

Judy, her sister and brother, Annie and Zeke, have appeared on the same stage many times before and as on all previous occasions she was accorded an enthusiastic reception. Although Zeke was left behind, Annie was along and she supplied accompaniment to Judy's many songs as well as giving a piano solo to the audience's delight.

Lang Thompson's orchestra is a comparatively new organization, but it is slated definitely to reach the top. He plays sweet and swing music with equal flavor.

Featured with the band are Peggy Nolan, a charmingly young Irish songstress, who has a very pleasing voice; Foo Martin, the drummer in the band who sings high for his sex; Jay Foster, fiddler who performs musically and gymnastically simultaneously, and the Thompson Glee club.

"The Captain Is a Lady" is the screen offering. The story concerns the life of a retired sea captain, who through a strange turn of fortune finds himself in an institution for old maids and widows. Charles Coburn, Billie Burke and Beulah Bondi have leading roles.—HOWELL JONES.

'Four Ink Spots' Here Wednesday

"The Four Ink Spots," creators of "If I Didn't Care," will sing with the Royal Entertainers at a pre-Halloween dance at the municipal auditorium Wednesday night, it was announced yesterday.

A special section will be reserved for white patrons.

"The Ink Spots" are currently among the most popular singers on the radio and on records. Among their most popular recordings are "My Prayer," "It's Funny to Everyone But Me," "Address Unknown," and "Stompin' at the Savoy."

A costume contest will be conducted with the "Ink Spots" acting as judges.

Man Burned to Death In Cell of Alabama Jail

PELL CITY, Ala., Oct. 27.—(AP) Haskell Patterson, 29, of Pell City, was burned to death today in his cell in St. Clair county jail.

Warden J. L. North said Patterson asked for matches this morning to light a cigaret. North said he smelled something burning a short time later and found the victim's clothing and cell padding ablaze.

The warden said Patterson was arrested last night on a drunk charge. He was employed here on a highway project.

Allergy to Song Leads To 'Juke Box' Death

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A nickel in the slot which brought forth the swing tune "Woodpecker Song" from a cantina "juke box" also brought death for Jesus Valenzuela.

Patrolman Uriel Prado had a particular aversion to the "Woodpecker Song" and when he heard it in the barroom he demanded to know who had made the selection.

The bartender pointed to Valenzuela. Prado pointed to Valenzuela with a gun. Valenzuela died a few minutes later. Prado was held for murder.

Female Is More Deadly Than Male, FBI Finds

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Crime statistics of the Federal Bureau of Investigation indicate the female is more deadly than the male—when once aroused.

A charge of murder, the FBI said today, was placed against 14 of each 1,000 women arrested thus far this year, whereas this was the charge against only 10 of each 1,000 men.

Women committed 8.4 per cent of all crimes in the first nine months of this year, compared with 7:5 per cent in the similar period of last year.

Presbyterian Group Leader Arrives Here

New Department Will Seek To Assist Underprivileged.

Miss Annie Tait Jenkins, of Crystal Springs, Miss., has arrived in Atlanta to direct the newly-created Department of Christian Relations of the Committee of Woman's Work headquarters of the Presbyterian churches.

The various phases of study and activities of the Presbyterian Woman's Auxiliaries which will come under Miss Jenkins' direction include: Community problems, Christian citizenship, the Christian home, interracial relations, industrial relations, and international relations and world peace.

Miss Janie McGaughy, secretary of the Presbyterian Committee of Woman's Work here, said Miss Jenkins' department will strive to improve conditions of many underprivileged groups in co-operation with other denominations and with various public and private welfare agencies will study trends and causes of crime and Negro problems in the south.

For the past three years Miss Jenkins has been Bible teacher and social advisor at the Mississippi State College for Women. She has represented the Presbyterian Committee on Woman's Work at a number of national and international adult education meetings. She is a graduate of Agnes Scott College, won her master's degree at Tulane University, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.
